GIRL IN FLAMES SETS GRANDPA AFIRE; BOTH MAY DIE

Five-year-old Josephine Nocera and her 83-year-old grandfather, Louis Nocera, were burned probably fatally today in their home, 61 Exchange street, Waltham. The girl's clothing caught fire from a gas heater and she leaped, flaming, into the bed where her grandfather was sleeping.

OPPOSE NEW HEARING ON N. E. COAL CAR RATES

Washington, March 11 (A.P.).—The Pennsylvania Railroad today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to deny the petition of the New England Traffic League for a further hearing in the case involving rates on anthracite from Pennsylvania mines to New England. The road's representatives declared the present temporary rates, placed in effect during the mine suspension, were too low and should not be made permanent.

It All Comes Back Conspicuous Good News Eat Soup, Mineral Salts Beer Less Violent

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1926, by Star Co.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND New York building trades workers will get what they ask, $1 to $1.50 a day increase. This will add $75,000,000 a year to the $525,000,000 already paid those wage-earners.

Conservative capital will weep for a little while, saying, "The nation is going to the dogs." Later, conservative capital will find all the money coming back to its coffers.

Masons, plasterers, bricklayers, carpenters, spend what they get. Some day big men will learn that all the money they can ever get is money spent by little men.

BAD NEWS is conspicuous; good news not. For instance, the navy perfects a torpedo used under water, despite the intense pressure of great depths.

It's an interesting torch, with three sheaves meeting at a point. From the three shelves acetylene gas, hydrogen gas and compressed air burst forth. An air bubble protects the fire under pressure, and the torch, developing under water a temperature of 5,000 degrees, will burn holes in the steel sides of sunken submarines and other ships, making it possible to pump in air and raise them to the surface.

That is at least as romantic and interesting as a hijacker crime and more important.

LADY FISHER, having lived on fruit juices and vegetable extracts for forty-two days, breaks her "fast" and takes milk. The diet—it is not a fast—has done her good, improving her complexion, preserving her strength.

From vegetables boiled to a liquid, she got the mineral salts absolutely essential to health. Give one rat nothing but water, give another rat water and unlimited quantities of food, from which all mineral salts have been extracted, and the rat eating food will die before the rat taking only water.

FOOD WITHOUT mineral salts is food without nourishment.

That is why good soup that in-

CHARGE TRUE, NICHOLS SAYS; TO GIVE INFANTS CARE; 54 IN 4 HOMES

Admitting the truth of disclosure of "baby farm" method in Boston, as revealed by the Finance Commission, Mayor Nichols today announced that corrective measures would be launched immediately.

The chief trouble, he revealed, lay in the placing of fifty-four children, whose parents were unable to bring them up, in four private homes by the city authorities in charge of taking care of the children of destitute parents.

The congestion resulting from the placing of several city charges in one home where parents already had several children of their own was intolerable, he said.

"I intend to care for the city charges as I would want my own children care for," said the mayor.

The spotlight of investigation was turned by State and city officials on the "lay farm" methods as a result of charges made by the Finance commission to the legislative committee on public institutions, the members of which, were asked to report favorably on a bill to have the State take over the city's work in the placing of poor children.

The methods employed by the city under the leadership of Miss Margaret Foley, head of the placing-out division, were described as "like those Charles Dickens wrote about" by Chairman Charles L. Carr of the Finance Commission.

MANY CHARGES CITED.

Included among the evils upheld the commission to ask the State to take over the city's placing-out work were:

Handing over children to families "who try to make a profit on each child on a $3 weekly payment given them by the city."

Children packed into rooms, and sleeping several in a bed, in homes of their foster parents.

WEDS SISTER; MOTHER SEEKS TO UNTIE KNOT

A mother pleaded in Suffolk Superior Court today for the annulment of the marriage of her son and daughter, who were wed while in ignorance of their relationship.

The youth and girl are both children of Mrs. Mary Crosby Cronin of No. 573 Hyde Park avenue, Roslindale.

The young husband, Howard Crosby, thirty-two years old, is the son of Mrs. Cronin by her first marriage. More than five years ago, according to Mrs. Cronin, he took as his wife Viola May Cronin, her daughter by a second marriage.

In spite of the mistake, which might have had serious consequences, the young couple never lived as man and wife, according to the testimony of all three, who successively took the witness stand.

The strange story of romance, marriage and separation, followed months later by discovery of the relationship as half-brother and half-sister, was told by the girl, who is now twenty-three years old.

"We were married when I was seventeen, by a justice of the peace, in Boston," she testified. "I did not know Howard was any relation

PONZI WINS FIRST TILT IN FLORIDA FRAUD TRIAL

Jacksonville, Fla., March 11 (A.P.).—Charles Ponzi, charged by the Federal government with using the mails to defraud, won a technical point in his resumed hearing today when Frank's Poor, assistant United States district attorney, announced the government would not insist on Ponzi producing records of the Charon Land Syndicate, which he headed.

On request of the defense the case was continued until Tuesday.

Ponzi is charged with selling through the mails "units of indebtedness" in the Charpon Land Syndicate and netting 200 per cent. profit within sixty days, which the government contends could not be done with land owned by the syndicate.

Frank Brennan argued for the defense that no one had reported being defrauded by Ponzi and declared Ponzi was ready to meet all promises made in his circulars.

Poll Indicates New England Is Strong for Dry Law Repeal

New Englanders favor a modification of the national prohibition law to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer, according to the latest figures in the Boston Evening American poll.

The hundreds of ballots flowing into the American office from all parts of New England also indicate a preference for local option. That is, those received thus far show that tendency. It may be, however, that the drys will be heard from in larger numbers later.

Figures to date of the ballots received by the Boston Evening American, which is conducting a nation-wide poll in conjunction with all the Hearst newspapers, follow—

1—Are you in favor of the existing prohibition law?
Yes 66 — No 1330

2—Are you in favor of local option?
Yes 990 — No 240

3—Are you in favor of modification of the Volstead Act to permit the manufacture and sale of beer with 2¾ per cent. alcoholic content?

SECOND AUTOPSY IN HULL MYSTERY DEATH

The foul play theory in the death of Ruth Totvalan, whose body, clad in a ballroom gown, was found on the beach at Surfside, Hull, gained strength today as the investigating authorities found themselves purged by new features of the mystery.

Relatives of the dead young woman were refused permission to take the body for burial.

A second autopsy may be necessary to determine the cause of death and District Attorney Winfield Wilbar of Plymouth County has ordered George Downing, Bingham undertaker, at whose place the remains are, to refrain from embalming the body until further notice.

Discovery was made by the investigating officials that a small gold ring worn by Miss Totvalan is missing, along with her coat and hat.

With every additional hour that passes without discovery of the missing articles the probability of foul play increases, police said.

The clothing worn by the girl was brand new, the police were informed by Mrs. Harry Agholan of No. 3 Chard street Roxbury, from whose home Miss Totvalan vanished last Saturday.

The possibility that she thought she was making a trip here to be married engaged the attention of the authorities when this information was given them, and search for the man whom she told her friends she

TWO MORE WOMEN ARE ATTACKED; ONE IN BACK BAY, OTHER, SCOLLAY SQ.

The holdup of two more women, one in the Back Bay and the other in Scollay square, the release of the original suspect and the rounding up of another, featured the police investigation today of the activities of the maniac stabber.

The latest victim, neither of whose names have been made public, brought the total up to seven women and girls who have been stabbed, kicked or held up in various parts of the city.

The Back Bay victim is said to be the wife of a prominent citizen and the mother of two children, who made her escape by running at top speed. The other, Superintendent Crowley admitted, was a stenographer on her way to work.

She told the police that while walking from Brattle square to Scollay square, a man struck her on the hip twice, and used vile language. His description was said to differ somewhat from that given by victims of the stabber.

While the names of the latest victims were not given out, the identities of the other five women who had been attacked either on Boston Common or the Public Gardens were revealed. They were:

Miss Eleanor Fayerweather of Brookline, a senior at the Normal Art School.

Miss Leola Blozen of No. 116 Hemenway street.

Miss Eleanor Davis of Davis avenue, Brookline.

Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall Tuckerman of Bay State road.

Miss Florence McEachern of Beacon street.

These women viewed the original suspect, arrested near the Park Square building, and after Mrs Tuckerman, to whose home he was taken, had failed like the others to identify him, he was ordered released.

The suspect was taken to the home of Mrs. Tuckerman because she had not sufficiently recovered from the Sunday stabbing to make the journey to the station house.

The new suspect was taken into custody from a St. Botolph street apartment, after complaints had been made that he was annoying girl students who live in the vicinity.

Miss Davis, accompanied by two women relatives, went to the cell room of the station, and after looking over the suspect said his hat and coat were the same, that he looked like the man who attacked her on the Public Gardens, but she could not make a positive identification.

The young woman said she was attacked on the morning of February 23, while on her way home from church, in the same manner as was Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall Tuckerman of No. 201 Bay State road.

Later Miss McEachern visited the

BIG SNOW STORM DUE TO BLANKET HUB AREA

Once upon a time, my children, there was a weather man, who was always playing practical jokes on his neighbors.

After handing them the worst Winter in years and years, he told them Spring was just around the corner and they grew merry and gay.

Then the weather man, chuckling in his sleeve, predicted a heavy snowstorm. That was the blow-off.

Anyway the prediction is true enough, even if the rest of this effusion is a fairy tale.

According to Meteorologist Loveland, the storm is due here tonight or early tomorrow. It was centred through the night in North Carolina, but its effects had reached Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York today, where snow fell extensively. It is not expected the temperature will drop greatly, if that's any encouragement.

FRANCE MAKES MOVE TO PAY DEBT TO U. S.

Washington, March 11 (A.P.).—France has reopened discussions with this country for settlement of her $4,000,000,000 war debt.

Ambassador Berenger, the newly appointed French envoy here, has been in conversation on the subject with Secretary Mellon.

While the secretary declined to discuss the negotiations today in detail, it was disclosed that he had advised President Coolidge that settlement of the French debt hinged to some extent upon the action of Congress on the Italian agreement, now under fire in the Senate.

It is believed, therefore, that the French negotiations will not be hastened until the Senate acts on the pending debt pacts.

The French debt is the largest remaining to be settled by the debt commission. Several ineffectual efforts to make a funding agreement have taken place since the close of the war.

station house, but according to Sergt. McDonough, was unable to pick the suspect from the lineup.

On the suspect, when he was arrested, was a small pair of sharp pointed buttonhole scissors, the police charge. The scissors had been ground to a needle point and razor edge.

The man was arrested by Sergeant Comerford, following complaints of nervous women who saw him loitering in the vicinity of the Park Square Building. The police have not divulged his name.

DIVORCED, POLICE SAY.

The police assert the suspect gave an address "No. 1302 Washington street." They describe him as nice appearing, and say he is divorced.

The police are of the opinion the "maniac," inasmuch as he only operates on Sundays from 7 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., picks his victims in churches or just outside. His phraseology, as he stabs them, sometimes is "how are you," and sometimes, "how did it feel," the police say.

He was frustrated by one woman he was following at Arlington and Boylston streets, when she made him flee with her threat to call a policeman.

A secret general order was issued after reports of the attacks had been received by the police, and the district in which the attacks occurred was liberally sprinkled with policemen.

POLICEWOMEN IN HUNT.

In addition, five policewomen were instructed to move about in the vicinity and try and invite an attack. Each had only a small club with which to protect herself. These "lures" for the "maniac" were Lillian M. Taylor, Irene Lynch, Irene McAuliffe, Margaret Callahan, and Margaret McCue.

A fifth victim of the "maniac" was Mrs. Ethel Clavering, of No. 37 Rollins street, South End, who was jabbed in the arm with a hypodermic needle as she stood gazing into the window of a big downtown store.

BRUTAL ATTACK DRIVES GIRL MAD

Chicago, March 11 (I.N.S.).—Attempted caresses by her escort recalled so vividly a harrowing experience at the hands of four men in a fashionable apartment a week ago that a young woman became hysterical and ran amuck in a roadhouse near Teasville, Ill.

The girl, Miss Irene Saari, nineteen, is in a hospital at Evanston, where physicians said her body and legs were in frightful condition as the result of what appears to have been a recent beating.

John W. Hill, vice-president of a large real estate firm, and J. Arthur Dundas, one of his business associates, are in technical custody. Two other employes of the firm and two enemy officers are sought.

Miss Saari said that on March 2, she went to a party which Hill was giving at a hotel. Two men were there.

"They locked the door and made me put on pajamas," the girl continued. "They said if I didn't obey and keep quiet they would throw me from the window."

Then followed three days of terror, according to the girl. She said she was bound to a couch, flogged with the belts and otherwise mistreated. Eventually, she said, she was taken secretly to another hotel, treated by a physician and finally sent to an outlying hospital.

DEER HERD ON TRACK BLOCKS TRAIN SERVICE

Denver, March 11 (I.N.S.).—Days when great herds of buffalo halted trains crossing the Western plains found an echo here when State Game Commissioner Parvin reported that a herd of 500 deer last week held up a Denver & Salt Lake train near Hot Sulphur Springs, Col. The herd settled down comfortably on the tracks and the train crew was forced to chase the animals off the roadbed, Parvin said. Heavy snows have driven deer from the higher ranges to raid farmers' haystacks.

RIFLE MEN OF B. U. OUT FOR HEARST CUP

Marksmen of the Boston University Reserve Officers' Training Corps rifle team are shooting with deadly accuracy, their chief aim being to capture trophies in the national R. O. T. C. shoot sponsored by William Randolph Hearst.

Intensive daily practice is putting the team in condition for the competition, in which a number of New England education institutions are entered. The first shot in the nation-wide shoot was fired on March 1 and the crack of rifles will continue until April 15.

Approximately 300 teams throughout the country are entered in the shoot. Among the New England institutions in the competition are: Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge; University of Maine, Orono, Me.; Yale University, New Haven, Conn.; Rhode Island State College, Kingston, R. I.; and Norwich University, Northfield, Vt. Several high schools of New England are also entered.

Some of the best college rifle teams of the country are vying for honors in the shoot. Chicago has twenty-one teams competing.

to me and we were very much in love with each other. So we got married on December 4, 1920.

"Howard had to go right back to Mitchel Field where he was in the aviation service, so we never lived together. When I went home after the marriage, I hurried right in to mother's room and cried: 'Mother, Howard and I have got married.'

"Mother cried, 'Oh, Vi, that can not be. He is your half-brother. You are both my children.' That was the first knowledge I had of our relationship."

Judge Donahue reserved decision until the marriage records can be brought into court.

"Howard thought Viola was the daughter of my second husband by a previous marriage," testified Mrs. Cronin.

"When he was a little fellow he went to Connecticut to live with friends o mine, and he stayed with them until he was 17. Then he enlisted in the navy f roofr years, and when he got out he visited me, afterwards going back to Connecticut.

"Later he served during the war and came to visit me, but he had no way of knowing Viola was my daughter, for I never told him. Viola has always been with me. I had no idea they were planning to be married.

"Viola told me of the marriage the day it took place and told me they had not lived together. She also told me they had obtained a waiver of the five-day law from a judge, so I wrote to the judge to have the marriage annulled by setting aside his waiver, but that proved to be impossible."

was to meet in Boston was renewed with fresh energy.

Coincident with other new information, Chief of Police Reynolds of Hull learned from Mrs. Marie Clavey, who conducts a store at Surfside, that it was a wedding ring, and not an engagement ring, that Miss Totvaian was measured for in her shop last Summer.

The fact that the body was never in anything but shallow water, if in the water at all, led police to point out that this was consistent with a theory that she was carried to the beach, perhaps unconscious, by a man. Had she waded into the water herself, they declared, she would probably have gone out into deep water, where the body would have remained submerged.

They scouted the possibility that the body would have washed quickly ashore from deep water, declaring that the clothing and the effect of cold water made it improbable that it would have been swept ashore for many days, if at all.

Chemical analysis of the stomach may fail far short of solving the mystery, they said.

The tragic experience of the dead girl while in Armenia was related to the authorities by her relatives in Rochester, N. Y. In the early days of the World War her father was massacred, together with thousands of others, in the community in which she lived on the Chorokh River.

Her father, Garabed Totvaian, was said to be the owner of a palatial home and large estates in Trebizond, on the Black Sea. With her aged mother, her brothers having also been slain in later massacres, she walked 550 miles to Constantinople to seek shelter with Christian missionaries.

At the time of the beginning of her troubles she was on the verge of going to Vienna to study music. After the war she started back to her old home, only to be driven out by another massacre. Following that she volunteered to the Red Cross as nurse and teacher.

related to each other, placed with the same family.

Filthy conditions at the room in City Hall Annex where the children are examined.

Children underweight and undernourished and suffering from skin diseases and other affections in houses where foster parents are plainly unable financially to take care of them.

"In one house in which city aided children were placed there were seventeen children, seven having chickenpox," said Dr. Maynard Ladd, specialist in children's diseases, who spoke before the legislative body.

WOMAN DENIES BLAME.

"Signs of tuberculosis were general. The children placed out by the city averaged 16 per cent. under weight and they were generally under normal height."

Blame was placed on Miss Foley, "because she has felt the responsibility rested entirely with her and has attempted to do all the child-placing by letter and telephone, using her corps of 'child visitors' as errand girls," it was charged.

Miss Foley denied laxity in handling the destitute children, and William S. Kinney, appointed by Mayor Nichols recently as commissioner of public institutions, asked that the city be given a chance to correct what abuses there may be by a change in personnel in the bureau.

There are not more than four children in any one home in which dependent children for the city are placed, Miss Foley asserts.

"The average is two children," she said. "You see, we have 167 boarding homes, and 400 children in these homes.

KEEPS IN TOUCH.

"If I did not feel that all the children, which the city of Boston is responsible for had good homes, I could not sleep nights. I am not a visitor, but I have personal knowledge of every one of the homes in which these children are placed.

"My job is deputy commissioner of institutions. Yet I keep in personal touch with each home, and visit each one at least once a year, and oftener, when I can.

"Each is an average home, with an average mother, and all homes are above the average in neatness and the things that count in bringing children up happily and properly.

"I see I am accused of not being at my desk and on the job. It is rather amusing at a season when city officials high and low are in Florida having a good time. It was only Tuesday evening that John L. Dowling, secretary of the finance commission, sailed for Bermuda, if I am not mistaken."

In the charges made by the finance commission, Chairman Charles L. Carr asserted: "Our representative went into 66 homes, in all parts of the State and for various reasons, including over-crowding, filth, ignorance on the part of foster mothers, and dissolutivess, she disapproved of 33 of them.

"There were some homes where the department had put unrelated children of different races, and trouble resulted. In one case a boy had assaulted a girl, but this home still maintains its status with the department, and now has 11 children as boarders."

Missing Husband in Jail as Bride Searches City

ESCAPED STIGMA

WOMAN IN 'TRIANGLE' IS SUED

$100,000 Demanded for Aid to Wed Elita Proctor Otis' Ex-Husband

Chicago, March 11.—Elita Proctor Otis Camp, former well-known actress; William C. "Billy" Camp and Mrs. Katherine C. Thorne, wealthy Chicagoan, formed an interesting version of the eternal triangle with unusual features some years ago, according to suit filed here.

Cyrus R. Shipman, Oregon preacher, in seeking $100,000 which he claims was promised him by Mrs. Thorne for services in speeding the divorce of Camp from the actress so the local woman could marry him.

Mrs. Thorne married Camp, only to divorce him in November 21, naming "Johnny" Walker, another actress, to whom he was married the next day.

Shipman's suit was filed two years ago, but details of the action were not known until his declaration was placed on record. The case is set for trial April 1.

Shipman claims that in December of 1918 he was retained by Mrs. Thorne, widow of a former vice-president of Monsomery, Ward & Co., to bring about a reduction in the alimony demanded by Camp's then wife, Elita Otis Proctor, well known New York actress, and thus hasten her divorce suit.

Mrs. Camp was demandine $1,000 a month, according to Shipman, but the decree was obtained and she was given only $200 a month alimony for life.

Shipman says Mrs. Thorne and Camp were married ten days later and for his services, the rancher declares, Mrs. Thorne promised him 1,000 shares of stock of the mail order concern, then worth $100 a share.

The plaintiff says the stock was never delivered to him, and he is in the odd position of paying Camp's alimony as he was made guarantor after the first six years.

ARRESTED FOR FAKE SALES

Located by the Boston American, He Had Feared to Notify Girl-Wife

While a young bride was tramping the streets of Boston today in search of her missing husband, supposedly a prosperous businessman, the Boston Evening American found him a prisoner in East Cambridge jail.

Kissing his wife good-by at the Hotel Somerset on Tuesday, James L. Cooper, as he was registered at the hotel, promised to be back in an hour. He did not return and his wife, a bride of eight months, sought refuge at the Florence Crittendon Home.

Daily the wife has walked the streets, scanning faces in the crowds. While she hunted today her husband was being taken to the jail to serve six months for larceny committed while posing as a hosiery salesman in Somerville.

On the police records he is listed as James Cerello, alias Thomas Chiaro. Questioned by the authorities at the request of the Boston Evening American, he admitted he is James L. Cooper," and he inquired anxiously for his wife.

Shortly after leaving the Hotel Somerset, Cooper or Cerello was arrested by Inspector Daniel M. O'Connell of the Somerville police, following a chase through several streets. He was given the six-months sentence in Somerville District Court.

Police say he is wanted in other cities. In Somerville he was charged with securing deposits on orders for hosiery, but failing to deliver the goods.

Fearful of shocking his wife, Cerello sent her no word of his arrest.

The couple arrived at the Somerset Monday forning and registered as from Portland, Me. They were married in Hartford, Conn. and went to Portland three months ago, according to the story told by the wife, when she asked Boston police to help her find her husband.

She believed he left the hotel to visit trade acquaintances in Boston in the interests of a concern he said he had accepted employment with in Portland.

Because Aileen had contracted a heavy cold sleeping in the furnaceless home, the mother told the girls to sleep in the real estate office, and they returned to care for their mother each day, the girls told the district attorney. Arrow points to room where police found Mrs. O'Connor dead.

MISS HONORA O'CONNOR.
To keep news of her mother's death from her younger sister prompted Aileen, 18, not to report finding the body, Dist. Atty. Reading says. It was found two weeks later.

Stillmans Happy

James A. and Anne U. Stillman are "so happy and oh, so young" in their revival of a honeymoon, Mrs. Henry P. Davison (shown here), who was formerly Anne Stillman, declared upon landing in New York from Paris. She said she was not the moving spirit in their reunion, but she is very glad it took place.

HID MOTHER'S DEATH FROM SISTER

Rather than cause Aileen O'Connor, eighteen, and her fourteen-year-old sister, Honora O'Connor, Newton girls, committed to East Cambridge jail after pleading not guilty to a charge of manslaughter, to suffer the stigma of spending a single night in jail, District Attorney Arthur K. Reading instituted an immediate investigation of the facts surrounding the death of their mother, Mrs. Norah O'Connor, and the girls were released.

Mrs. O'Connor was found dead when Newton police forced an entrance to her home two weeks after she had died, a victim of the cold. "As a result of my investigation, I do not believe that the girls acted much differently than other children lacking guidance might have acted under similar circumstances," District Attorney Reading said.

The two girls left East Cambridge jail in the company of Mrs. Celia Wellman, probation officer of Newton District Court, who has been their guardian in all their troubles and has given the Middlesex District Attorney assurance that a good home will be provided for them.

J. D. R. on Splurge; Squanders Whole Dime on a Girl

Ormond Beach, Fla., March 11 A.P.)—John D. Rockefeller was shy another dime today which he gave to Miss Margaret Hastings of New York, following a discussion with her of the merits of golf. It must have brought him good luck, for immediately afterward he drove 156 yards from tee to green.

Then as he almost sunk a long putt for a birdie two he shouted for joy at his first accomplishment of a drive of that distance this season. The ball hung on the lip of the cup and Mr. Rockefeller only had to tap it for a par three.

Miss Hastings excels in archery, swimming, tennis, golf and other sports.

Cheated by Death

Miss Sophie Stanion, Hyde Park, who is suing estate of her suicide fiance for $25,000 "heart balm." It is first case of kind in this State.

Girl Burned to Death

New York, March 11.—Helen Leary, 2*, of South Orons Park, L. I., was burned to death when her clothes caught fire from a gas stove in a friend's apartment.

ROMANCE ENDED IN SUDDEN TRAGEDY

Bride-to-Be Left Waiting at Church as Rich Fiance Killed Self by Gas

The estate of a dead man, who committed suicide while his bride-to-be was waiting at the altar, is sued for his breach of promise to marry, in an action filed today in Suffolk Superior Court by Miss Sophie Stanion of Hyde Park.

Miss Stanion, who lives in River street, asks damages of $25,000. She has attached the real estate left by the late John Jackimovicz of No. 15 Easton avenue, Hyde Park, for that amount.

The girl, dressed in her wedding finery and surrounded by wedding guests, waited in vain for Jackimovicz, who was a wealthy business man, on the day set for their marriage last October.

At the last minute, sisters of Jackimovicz hurried to his house to find him. The doors were locked, Getting help, they forced their way in and found him dead in a gas-filled room.

Jackimovicz left a note in which he had written: "Sophie Stanion is a good girl. I am no good."

Attorney John F. Hurley who, in the name of Miss Stanion, brings the novel suit and raises an issue seldom befora presented to the courts of the country, obtained permission to attach the property from Judge Prest in Suffolk Probate Court.

RADDING GOES BACK TO FACE FORGERY CHARGES

New York, March 11 (I.N.S.)—Edward Radding, thirty-five, who took poison in a room at the Hotel McAlpin and recovered from its effects at Bellevnue Hospital, went back to Providence, R. I., today to face forgery charges. The young promoter is involved in a financial snarl said to involve more than $1,000,000. Early this month a brother of Radding, in Springfield, Mass., received a letter from the accused man that he intended registering at the Hotel McAlpin as Edward Rogers and end his life. The brother sped to the hotel and found Radding unconscious from a sleep-compelling drug.

AGED SPINSTER DIES OF GAS AND POISON

Worcester, March 11 (A.P.)—Miss Mary Rice, sixty-three, well-to-do, of No. 10 Ruth street, who swallowed a quantity of poison and then opened two burners of a gas range Tuesday and who was found unconscious by a maid, died today. Relatives say she was despondent because of illness.

GARDIN "RABBIT TRACKS" ON FARM BILL, IS CHARGE

Washington, March. 11 (A.P.)—Secretary Jardine was accused by Representative Kincheloe, (D.) Kentucky, of "rabbit tracking" on farm legislation at hearings today before the House Agricultural Committee. Rabbit tracking, he explained, was "weaving in and out and leaving doubt as to his exact position." William Hirth, chairman of the Agricultural Conference Committee, when the charge was made was testifying on a bill designed to handle the surplus corn problem. Asked how Jardine viewed the proposal, Hirth declared he could not say, although a few days ago he appeared to be against it.

BOTTOM OF KANSAS DROPS OUT; HOLE SPREADING

Sharon Springs, Kan., March 11 (A.P.).—A crater, formed suddenly in the bed of the Smoky River near here, continues to enlarge, and today it had grown to a diameter of 300 feet and to a depth estimated at 100 feet. Persons rushing to the scene could not account for the phenomenon.

The bed of the river was dry when the hole appeared, but today about 25 feet of water stood in the crater, apparently from subterranean streams. At first the hole looked like a large well, with almost perpendicular sides. Later, however, the surrounding ground began to sink slowly and some of the dirt dropped in from the sides, until it was shaped something like a funnel.

"The bottom just fell out of the earth," was the way one man described it. "The first we knew about it was when a dense smoke was seen over the locality. Apparently the occurrence was local, as there was no earthquake."

There are no mines or oil or gas wells in this locality.

Smuggling Pact Signed

Havana, March 11 (A.P.).—A general anti-smuggling treaty between the United States and Cuba, known as a convention of "mutual assistance," was signed today by General Enoch H. Crowder, American ambassador, and Secretary of State Cespedes.

VALERA OUT AS SINN FEIN HEAD

Dublin, March 11 (A.P.).—Eamon De Valera, Irish Republican leader, has resigned the presidency of the Sinn Fein following rejection by the Ard Fheis, or Republican General Assembly, of his motion favoring Republican representation in the Dail Eireann and Ulster Parliament.

The resolution was defeated after a two days' secret conference by a vote of 223 to 218.

U.S. Places No Bar on St. Patrick's Day Shamrocks

Shamrocks from Ireland are not barred at American ports.

Thousands of persons of Irish birth or descent were made happy today by announcement by Federal authorities that, in spite of a widespread impression to the contrary, the plants can be imported without limit for St. Patrick's Day.

The plants can be shipped here, however, only if all soil is removed and the leaves placed in moss or other preservatives. The soil is barred because of the presence of germs of plant disease.

THUGS HOLD UP, LOOT FREIGHT

Peoria, Ill., March 11 (A.P.).—A Minneapolis St. Louis freight train was held up near here today. The thugs cut the train, allowing some cars believed to have contained alcohol to roll back downhill, and forcing the engineer to proceed with the remainder.

The train of forty cars was cut by the robbers at Eden, twenty-two cars remaining with the engine. Near Trivoli the crew noticed that the load seemed lighter. A brakeman upon investigating, was met by armed men, who announced that they were seeking cigarettes and liquor and that they had enough trucks to haul away two carloads.

Holding the brakeman, the robbers searched the twenty-two cars, hauling away much loot. The train then proceeded after being coupled together.

A detective and the conductor were in the caboose on the section cut loose. It was said later that the train carried no alcohol.

PUBLIC HONOR TO FIRE HERO

Historic Faneuil Hall has been chosen as the scene of the presentation of the Boston Evening American Diamond Medal to Hoseman Frank H. Walter of Roslindale, for valorous conduct in attempting to save two men in the hold of the gasoline tank ship Phoenix at East Braintree in December. The presentation exercises will be held on Monday evening, March 22.

A gala program has been arranged for the occasion, including addresses and a varied entertainment. The Diamond Medal will be presented to Hoseman Walter by Mayor Nichols. The Mayor will also present $100 in gold to Mrs. Clementine Walter.

The six young children of Fireman Walter will occupy seats on the platform while their daddy is decorated for his bravery. Even the two-year-old twins, Frank, Jr., and Joseph, will stay up after regular bed-time to be in on the big party.

In addition to interesting short addresses the program will include a fine concert by Lambert Brothers' twelve-piece orchestra and the Cappuccio Trio, will also be heard in several numbers. Another artist of ability who will entertain is Miss Carolyn Harris Gomley, contralto soloist.

Remember, folks, all this will be FREE. It won't cost you a penny to witness the presentation of the Diamond Medal to the hero and listen to the fine program of music and speeches.

BRIAND FIRMLY FOR PEACE

(Copyright, 1926, by I. N. S.)

Geneva, March 11.—Aristide Briand is determined not to let the League of Nations dispute develop into any general European discord, he told International News Service upon his arrival from Paris today.

"The era of European peace began at Locarno, and nothing must happen to check it," said the Premier with great emphasis.

"Before leaving Paris I conferred with the President of the republic, the president of the Senate and the Chamber, and I am certain that I have the confidence of the French people and the interests I will defend here are really those of France.

"I have a firm desire to continue in accord with my friend, Sir Austen Chamberlain, and to carry on the policy of peace that began at Locarno.

ACCUSED OF UTTERING THREATS OVER $500 LOAN

Edgar Keene of No. 56 Boston street, Somerville, in East Cambridge district court today was found guilty of threatening Adolph M. Price of No. 59 Boston street, Somerville.

According to the evidence, Price loaned $500 to Keene, a fellow worker in a Cambridge shop, and when he asked for the money was threatened. Judge Joseph A. Donovan placed the case on file with the understanding that Keene would pay Price $10 a week.

GIRL'S REAL PARENTS ASK 'JUDGMENT OF SOLOMON'

Above is shown Helen Ball, 13-year-old foster-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Connell, properous residents of Hingham Center, who love her as dearly as if she were of their own flesh and blood. Helen is shown with a friend, Lucy Norris.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen J. Ball, shown above with a daughter Mildred, are the real parents of Helen, whom they placed in a Catholic orphanage years ago when they were sorely oppressed by poverty. Helen was taken by the Connells, and now her real parents, in prosperity, have resorted to the courts to obtain legal possession of the child. There is a conflict of love in the trial that brings about many dramatic situations and heart throbs.

AUTO HITS CAR IN BRIGHTON; ONE HURT

One man was injured and six others were shaken up today when an automobile crashed into the side of a trolley car at Brighton and Commonwealth avenues. The driver of the automobile was arrested.

Harry Hill, forty-one, of Commonwealth avenue, Allston, was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital and treated for bruises. Hill was a passenger in the automobile driven by William J. Brown, also of Commonwealth avenue, who was taken in custody by Brighton police on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor.

The car was dented on the side. The accident occurred, police said, as Brown was making the turn at the junction of the avenues, the automobile failing to clear the rear of a car in front of it.

GETS FIVE YEARS FOR ROBBERY IN BELMONT

Charles Salerno of Cambridge was sentenced to five years and a day at Concord Reformatory, by Judge Flynn in Middlesex Superior Court today, after pleading guilty to assault and robbery of Harry Sallin of Cambridge. Eva Murphy, also of Cambridge, indicted with Salerno pleaded not guilty and was held for trial in $10,000. The indictment charged that the girl with Salerno and a third man not captured took Sallin in an automobile to a lonely road in Belmont, where they robbed him of $40 and a watch.

REAL PARENTS DEMAND THEIR DAUGHTER

Two sets of parents, real and foster, faced each other in Suffolk Superior Court and fought bitterly for the permanent custody of 13-year-old Helen Ball.

The child's parents, Owen J. and Della Ball of No. 78 Pierce street, Hyde Park, told a pitiful story on the stand as they testified that eight years ago they were very poor and it became necessary to place the child with the Home for Destitute Catholic Children.

"But, today," the father said, "I am well and healthy and working steadily and properly taking care of my other three children. If I can keep two children in high school and the other in the grammer grade, feed and clothe them as they should be, give them a comfortable home and the love and affection of parents my wife and I can do the same for little Helen."

But Thomas F. Connell and his wife, Mary, of Hingham Centre, denied the parental rights of the Balls and said:

"For eight years we have had Helen. We treated like our own. She is the only child we have and we love her. We have given her every advantage a little girl should have. She has taken piano lessons, she has a fine home and all the comforts of modern conveniences. We have done everything to make her happy and she is happy and contented."

Father Edward J. Fraher of Hyde Park testified for the Balls and told of knowing them for five years, that their home was comfortable and clean.

FUR DEMAND MAY RID NORWAY OF SQUIRRELS

Oslo, Norway, March 10.—Much regret is felt here that the world's demand for furs threatens the extinction of the squirrel in the Norwegian woods. The tempting prices offered—as high as 75 cents a pelt—have led to unusually active hunting. Last year there were exported to the United States 50,000 squirrel skins. Furriers here say that the demand for squirrel skins dominated the fur market in 1925 because these skins were the cheapest.

Carefully treated by experts, they are resold in the United States for many times more than Norwegian hunters receive for them.

PLEADS GUILTY TO ROBBING HIS GRANDMOTHER

Michael F. Britt, thirty-two, was arraigned in East Boston District Court today on a charge of larceny of several pieces of jewelry and some clothing from his aged grandmother, Mrs. Bridget Leonard of No. 10 Liverpool street, East Boston, with whom he has lived since childhood.

Britt, according to the police, is an old offender and has appeared at least 50 times in the East Boston court for various offences. His grandmother has never failed to come to his aid, and has repeatedly furnished bail and pleaded clemency for her grandson.

Britt pleaded guilty to the larceny charge, admitting that he had had stolen three rings, breastpin, a gold watch, earrings and a raincoat from the grandmother.

Mrs. Leonard wept bitterly when Judge Joseph H. Barnes sentenced Britt to two years in the House of Correction. She said she was anxious to recover her wedding ring, which was among the articles taken by Britt.

The latter told Judge Barnes, however, that he could not remember where he had disposed of it, as he was "on a wild drunk" at the time and did not know what he was doing.

Britt appealed the sentence.

U. S. MAY LAND FORCE IN CHINA

Washington, March 11 (A.P.)—Decisive action by the United States and other world powers is in prospect in China unless the principals in the civil war there amend their practices.

Not only the Peking government but the rival generals themselves have been notified by the foreign diplomatic corps in China their governments will co-operate in whatever action is necessary to protect foreign shipping between Peking and the sea.

There is every indication that the strongly worded "demand" to the Chinese leaders has the full backing of Washington. American warships are in Chinese waters and it is assumed they will be used if necessary, as they have been frequently, to enforce the full protection promised in the Boxer agreement.

THE THEATRE

Sunday "Parade"

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THE drama marks its own course by sags, tilts and occasional elevations. Times are good or bad according to well defined principles—soaring markets or declining revenues. But still there are staples in the theatre—things that never droop or vanish. Always, for example, we have Morris Gest's Russians treading the boards.

A FRACTION of the week has been given to the Russianized "Carmen" at the Boston Opera House. Call it acting opera or operatic acting—in either case it sets forth the talents of the Moscow Art Theatre's Musical Studio. "Carmencita and the Soldier" has done well for Mr. Gest and has raised high hopes of further artistic conquest in the new bill to be presented tomorrow night, "Lysistrata." In the new venture, Olga Baklanova will continue as Mr. Gest's principal artist.

Olga Baklanova

O' "Lysistrata," a twenty-three-hundred-year-old farce comedy, it may be said that there's life in the old girl yet. The modernist poet, Dmitri Smolin, has revised Aristophane's old story of the original Grecian sex strike and has given it many modern touches. One set is adapted to many scenes, and music by Reinhold Gliere will hold the ear. There will be but three performances of "Lysistrata," starting tomorrow night.

SUNDAY SHOWING—For the first time since its opening at the Majestic in January, "The Big Parade" will now exhibit on Sunday nights. The first performance under this new schedule will be given next Sunday night and will continue through the engagement.

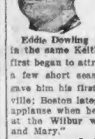
EDDIE DOWLING BACK.

EDDIE DOWLING, frequently mentioned as Boston's own sparkling comedian, moves back to his old love at B. F. Keith's this week. For several years Eddie has been tearing up and down Broadway and the hinterlands in his own musical comedy, but always he has been a vaudevillian at heart. It was in the same Keith theatre that he first began to attract attention only a few short seasons ago. Boston gave him his first chance in vaudeville; Boston later loaded him with applause when he filled a Summer at the Wilbur with "Sally, Irene and Mary."



Eddie Dowling

MR. DOWLING takes naturally to the two-a-day schedule. He knows it from pit to gallery. As this week's headliner he plays with both tears and smiles. It is his way. His own songs supply his repertoire; his own quaint stories warm your heart or tickle your funny bone. Mr. Dowling confesses that he is chained to vaudeville for only five weeks. Then it will be another musical comedy of his own making, presenting Eddie Dowling as author, librettist, composer and actor.

HERE'S A NEW DEAL.

MR. JEWETT'S energetic players at the Repertory will move away from Bernard Shaw next Monday and present "Minick," an American comedy by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman. A slight change in policy at the Repertory will bring about a weekly change in bill for the next three weeks, starting with "Minick" and continuing with "The Circle" and "The Goose Hangs High."

'DEPORTED' BY MASKED MEN

Wolfville, N. S., March 11 (I.N.S.)—Six masked men entered the jail here early today by means of a skeleton key and seized James Andrews of Silver Springs, Mont., who was held on a technical charge of vagrancy.

Andrews was taken to the boundary of the town, where he was told he would be tarred and feathered if he came here again.

Later the authorities recaptured the man and took him to Kentville jail. Sympathizers are raising a fund to send him home to Montana.

NEW YORK PHONE CO. IS REFUSED RATE BOOST

New York, March 11 (A.P.)—The New York Telephone Company's request for permission to increase its rates 25 per cent. in the city and 15 per cent. elsewhere in the State has been denied by a special statutory court which expressed surprise that the request should have been made while the question is pending before the public service commission. The request was in the form of an application for an injunction against the commission. The application was denied unanimously by Circuit Judges Rogers and Manton and Judge Hand of the Federal District Court, sitting as a court.

MRS. SCHOELKOPF RENEWS SUIT FOR PARIS DIVORCE

Paris, March 11 (I.N.S.)—Efforts of the French courts at reconciliation having failed, Mrs. Walter Schoelkopf of Buffalo, N. Y., victim of a daring gem robbery, has renewed her demand for a divorce from her wealthy husband. The reconciliation efforts were in accordance with the usual formal procedure of the divorce tribunal, when both parties to the marital dispute are invited to avail themselves of the court's efforts at mediation. Mrs. Schoelkopf has just sailed for the United States. The divorce is expected to be handed down within the next three weeks.

BUTLER MAY START NAVY 'CLEANUP'

Insists on Service Under His Command Stay Absolutely "Dry"

Los Angeles, March 11 (I.N.S.).—"You can't drink in the service," declared Brig.-Gen. Smedley D. Butler, formerly Director of Public Safety in Philadelphia, who a few days ago became commandant of the U. S. Marine base at San Diego.

And these words may become the slogan of a campaign to "clean up" Pacific Coast ports, where marines are said to obtain liquor easily.

Refusing to comment directly on charges of intoxication made by him against Col. Alexander Williams, whom he succeeded at San Diego, General Butler said:

"It's a rule of the navy that no man gets drunk.

"It doesn't make a bit of difference whether this country has prohibition or not, navy rules and navy traditions say men shall not drink and it has always been so."

"Have your recent experiences in civil life in Philadelphia changed your mind about men and officers drinking in the service?" he was asked.

"Not a bit of it," he shouted.

"In Philadelphia I have found that only one thing can stop crime," he said. "That is the stamping out of vice. After we cleaned up gambling dens and other holes in Philadelphia, crime stopped.

"In Philadelphia, hold-ups dropped more than 70 per cent. after the "shoot to kill" order went out, and there were no deaths among policemen."

General Butler said he had no plans to again desert the marines to "clean up" Los Angeles, as he was urged to do by many citizens to-day.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER DISORDERS

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poisons, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize irritating acids and flush off the body's waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.

COMMUNITY LIPSTICKS KEPT IN WOMEN'S CLUBS

London, March 11 (A.P.)—In some of the fashionable Mayfair women's clubs the community lipstick is as much of an accepted institution as the restaurant roller towel and chained-up hair brush.

Modern women in their rush sometimes leave their lipsticks at home and to supply this vital need in an age of carmined beauty the idea of a club lipstick was born.

The communized lipsticks do not hang by chains from dressing tables but are kept in the custody of maids, ready for use when called for.

50-HOUR AIR LINE FROM BERLIN TO VLADIVOSTOK

Washington, March 11 (A.P.).—A fifty-hour airplane service between Berlin and Vladivostok, the principal Soviet port on the Pacific, will be opened this year, said an announcement today by the Russian Information Service.

The new air line is being organized by the German-Russian Navigation Company in conjunction with the German Company Aero-Lloyd. From Vladivostok a special connecting airplane line will go to Tokyo.

UP WITH FLAG! SAYS FULLER

A proclamation for historic exercises, patriotic demonstrations and a general display of the colors on March 17, the 150th anniversary of the evacuation of Boston by British troops, was issued today by Governor Fuller.

"That the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and its capital city contributed so much in the struggle for freedom and independence should always be a source to us of gratitude, pride and emulation," the proclamation read in part.

The document also pointed out that in the century and a half that has elapsed since the evacuation "America has grown from a struggling dependency to the greatest nation on earth, the pride and hope of liberty-loving people the world over."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

MISS MARY VINTON MURRAY WEDS MAJOR ROSS T. WHISTLER ON APRIL 17

MISS MARY VINTON MURRAY and Major Ross T. Whistler are deep in that most fascinating of occupations—the making of wedding plans. For the ceremonial to be celebrated on April 17 in Emmanuel Church, the Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester will read the marriage lines.

FOR THE BRIDE'S attendants in the processional, Miss Nancy Murray is down for a bridesmaid role and is, as yet, the sole feminine representative so far chosen. Major Whistler has his staff quite complete.

HARRISON G. REYNOLDS (who married Miss Jean Fletcher a few years ago), a club and college mate of the bridegroom-elect, is to be best man. Boston young men well known in the upper strata who are to be ushers are four in number.

GEORGE R. FEARING, Mr. Francis Parkman, Henry Parkman and Henry Gilman Nichols are the quartet—all Harvard men. N. Burke Paradise of the staff halls from New Haven and New York furnishes a trio.

THEODORE T. GROSVENOR and Clarence Van S. Mitchell (both with Boston affiliations) and Charles J. Coulter are the trio to complete a very smart and very important octeris to lend eclat to this most auspicious of weddings.

FAMILY CONNECTIONS on both sides—the Murray and the Whistler lines—have place and distinction in Boston's and Baltimore's aristocracy. Miss Murray, through the paternal line, is allied with old Maryland families and the bridegroom is a grandnephew of the famous artist, Whistler.

MR. AND MRS. ROSS WINANS of Baltimore are connections and Mr. and Mrs. Ross W. Whistler of "Hidden House," one of the Berkshire's lovely old estates, are Mr. Whistler's parents. His club roster and his war service both are most impressive.

FOR THE FORMER there's are the Somerset, the University, Army and Navy, Harvard Club of New York and the Coffee Club, also of the Big City. War service was overseas as a Machine Gun Company officer with the 80th Division.

SCHOLASTICALLY, Major Whistler progressed through St. Paul's School to Harvard, taking his sheepskin from the University over the Charles in 1916. The bridegroom-elect's circle also is of much brilliance.

MRS. JOHN L. AMES, patroness for the Moscow Art Theatre Musical Studio productions at the Boston Opera House.

FOXCROFT IN VIRGINIA and Winsor in Boston both figure in Miss Murray's school days and both are smartest of the smart. Furthermore, she belongs to the Junior League, and has traveled widely abroad.

A WEDDING journey to foreign shores is on the cards, the young people planning to sail on the steamship Samaria almost immediately after the wedding, to be away for two months in England and on the Continent.

LITERARY STARS of the first magnitude come to town as special guests for the Repertory Theatre's poetry matinee tomorrow afternoon and immediately on their arrival are caught up in a continuous round of entertainment.

IT IS INDEED a brilliant trio—Leonora Speyer (Mrs. Edward Speyer, wife of the noted New York financier), Edward Davison, over from England, and Joseph Auslander. Each has achieved fame in this chosen line.

MADAME SPEYER will be a guest at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Farnham Greene of Chestnut street have Mr. Davison as their house guest and Mr. Auslander goes to Newton Centre as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Connick.

AS TO THE FESTIVE round of entertainment; that starts off with Friday afternoon's poetry matinee and continues right up to and through Sunday evening. On Friday evening Leighton Rollins entertains thirty guests at dinner at the Art Club with the three visiting lions in honor places.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON there's a reception, specially honoring Mr. Davison, with the Authors' Club and the New England Poetry Club as hosts, the scene the Twentieth Century Club. Saturday evening Miss Marjorie Knapp entertains at her Mount Vernon street place in honor of Mrs. Speyer.

ON SUNDAY the scene shifts to Wellesley and Dean Edith F. Tufts entertains in Tower Court for Mrs. Speyer and Mr. Davison; later Miss Geraldine Gordon is hostess for tea at Hathaway House, Wellesley, with the three visiting poets, and Miss Harriet Sampson and Leighton Rollins occupying honor places.

AS WINDUP to this literary flow of soul Mrs. Joseph Dix Snell gives a supper party Sunday for the visitors and many local literary lights at her Wellesley estate, "Long Meadow," and on Monday the out-of-town trio departs.

DELICATE, FRAGRANT forsythia and quantities of gay Spring blossoms made a floral bower in the First Church of Chestnut Hill for the marriage ceremonial of Miss Alice Lee, daughter of Mrs. Francis Wilson Lee of Chestnut Hill, and Joseph Timothy Walker, Jr.

CLUSTERS AND BASKETS of the same flowers made Spring-like the Lee residence for the reception following the church ceremonial, and Spring-like as well were the frocks and chapeaux of the bride's attendants.

THEY, THE MISSES Mary Lee, Edith D. McHenry, Frances Howell and Margaret A. Kennard, wore crisp taffeta, apple green in tint done in the billowy picture mode, topped with hats of golden brown straw laden with Spring-tinted blossoms.

BRIDAL RAIMENT followed the old time-honored decree of ivory satin, its gleaming folds swathed in priceless old family laces warm ivory in tone. A court train swung its formal length beneath a veil of rare and lovely lace, and the bouquet was valley lilies and orchids in shower.

COL. COOLIDGE SHOWS GAIN

Plymouth, Vt., March 11 (A.P.).—The condition of Colonel John S. Coolidge, father of the President, who is ill at his home here, showed a slight improvement today, his physician, Dr. Albert W. Cram of Bridgewater, said after a call at the Coolidge farmhouse.

Dr. Cram said his patient was a little more comfortable than he had been during the past 24 hours and suffered no pain.

"Colonel Coolidge is rather weak because he has not taken much nourishment since Sunday," the physician said. "This morning, however, he was able to take some nourishment and he appeared to be slightly stronger. His pulse is regular and he has had no recurrence of heart attack. I feel that his condition indicates no immediate cause for alarm."

WOULD BAR PASTOR MUM ON 'CHRIST'S VIRGIN BIRTH'

Newark, N. J., March 11 (A.P.).—The Newark Presbytery, which voted to admit the Rev. Lester H. Clee, Baptist minister, to a Presbyterian pastorate last month, has directed that Mr. Clee must appear again before the examining committee before he can be installed. The action is the result of a fight to keep Mr. Clee out of Presbyterian pulpits because of his refusal to deny or affirm belief in virgin birth of Christ, the miracle of the raising of Lazarus, the feeding of the 5,000 and the resurrection.

INSTANTLY, EAGERLY WELCOMED · This new different Toilet Soap!

It is just as women wanted it—made by the method France uses for her finest toilet soaps . . .

"MAKE a toilet soap as delicious for personal use as French soap," women begged us, "but oh, not so terribly expensive."

At last they had it in their slim eager hands—this new different toilet soap they asked us to make for them!

Off came its old-time sampler wrapper—there it was, satin-smooth, fine-textured, firm—"like the finest French soap!"

One touch to water—oh, that rich caressing lather that makes you feel so exquisite! Makes you feel luxurious, "soignée," just as costly French soap used to!

They loved Lux Toilet Form—those exacting, fastidious women! They went right straight back and bought more . . . And more . . . And more.

"It's so smooth and delicious and fine! When I used Lux Toilet Form—why I felt just as though I had bought it in Paris," said one delighted woman.

"My family refuse to use anything else since I got Lux Toilet Form," another told her grocer—he has sold over a hundred cakes a day!

"This is great soap—it lathers so freely—it's not too fragrant, either," said one man who orders Lux Toilet Form regularly.

"The men are certainly buying it, too," say the stores.

Yes, its place was waiting for Lux Toilet Form in hundreds of particular bathrooms.

All over the country the same story—from druggists, from department stores, from grocers—they just can't keep Lux Toilet Form in stock. It sounds like a fairy-tale—but then it is a true "savon de toilette" at a reasonable price!

Without feeling extravagant the entire family can use it for both toilet and bath—Lux Toilet Form lasts and lasts—it's a real "savon condensé." Druggists, department stores and grocers have it, ten cent stores, too. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Instant ample lather the moment the cake is wet—men, those sternest of critics, like it

Satiny, exquisite—somehow you feel more charming, lovelier

Shimmering lovely hair—plenty and plenty of lather is the secret of easy rinsing

Delicately fragrant, satiny, firm, the moment you see it you recognize Lux Toilet Form as a true "savon de toilette." 10c.

In its wrapper like a cherished old-time sampler Lux Toilet Form is here to take its place as your personal soap. 10c.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT VOICE OF DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

SAMUEL CURTIS, JR., Radio Editor

NOVEL BROTHER CLUB MEET

The meeting of the Boston Edison Big Brother Club tonight will be broadcast direct from the main dining room on the 14th floor of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and will be broadcast from a position at the head table, where the six hundred guests at the banquet given by the Metropolitan Electrical League of Boston to Mr. Charles L. Edgar, president of The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, may see just how it is done from the studio at WEEI.

The program will go on the air at 7:15 P. M. with an organ recital by Louis Weir, Chamber organist. At the conclusion of the dinner, the Big Brother Club will go on the air and will feature as its entertainment a program by the Banjo Uke Quartet, who will play an one of their numbers the much requested song, "The Cat Came Back."

At the conclusion of the meeting at 7:30 the diners will sing the closing off song "On the Radio" with Louis Weir playing the organ as accompaniment.

LIGHTHOUSE MEN TO BE BENEFITED BY PROGRAM

So many letters have come to the Big Brother Club from the lighthouses and lightships scattered all over the Atlantic Ocean, that the Brother has decided to devote a part of every Wednesday evening's meeting to these folks.

In this way these sentinels of the sea may keep in touch with land activities and also hear from other lighthouse-keepers as their letters are read over the radio.

There are already nineteen lighthouse-keepers writing weekly to the Big Brother Club.

Length of the Aerial

Use a short aerial for selectivity, and a long outdoor aerial for volume and distance. A combination of the two can easily be arranged by installing a single pole double throw switch. Run a length of bell wire through one or two rooms or around the moulding in one room for the indoor aerial, the end of which is attached to one of the switch pins. The other post is attached to the long aerial coming in from the outside. The common contact goes to the aerial post on the set.

VICTIM OF RICH YOUNG 'LIFER' REJOICES

"Modern Girls" Vindicated by Heavy Sentence, Miss King Says

Mason, Mich., March 11 (I N.S.).—The "modern girl" has been vindicated.

This was the comment today of Miss Louise King, blonde Battle Creek college student, on the conviction of Arthur Rich, millionaire's son, charged with attacking her.

"I feel," said Miss King, "that girls like myself—girls referred to in this case as 'modern girls'—have been vindicated. It must be terribly hard on Arthur's parents. But it was hard on my mother, and it was terrible for me, with my jaw broken and afraid of going mad because of what Arthur had done to me."

Rich was on his way to prison today to begin a life sentence imposed by Judge Charles H. Collingwood. He was haggard after a sleepless night.

Within an hour before he was sentenced Rich was smiling and planning a vacation in California.

Said Judge Collingwood today, "It's sad, but in this case there were no extenuating circumstances. There was nothing to justify that brutal attack on the golf grounds."

Hunt in Africa May Be too Soft, Eastman Fears

New York, March 12 (A.P.)—"Too much luxury" is the only disturbing thought in the mind of George Eastman, 72 year-old camera manufacturer, who is going on a lion hunting trip in the heart of British East Africa. Mr. Eastman arrived from Rochester today. He sails tomorrow on the Majestic.

Mr. Eastman said he was used to roughing it in the Rockies and the Canadian Northwest. For many years he has spent four or five weeks each summer hunting big game in America.

"I like the exercise one gets on an American camping party," he said. "I'm afraid that things will be too soft and luxurious on the African continent—so many servants to do everything for you and all that sort of thing—Hemingway style, you know."

He admitted he expects to have the time of his life

MAYOR RESENTS COST OF LYNN SCHOOL 'FADS'

$181 Potato Peeler and $295 Meat Chopper Are Too Much for Bauer

Potato peelers at $181, meat chopper at $295, and mahogany and gum wood cabinets at $800 apiece, are to be used to teach the boys at Lynn, in the manual training and household science classes in the Lynnfield school, if Mayor Ralph B. Bauer has his way.

He approved bills for a peeler, chopper and the cabinets, stating the goods had already been delivered, but his honor wasn't exactly happy about it.

"What incentive is there to a young man seeking a wife, when he learns the girl of his choice will do her potato peeling with a $181 machine?" the mayor asked S. Gruver Harvey, superintendent of schools. "How will he like it when he learns the Monday hash and the Tuesday hamburg steak can be made edible only after it is run through a $295 chopper? It is rid. ulous. Very likely the boy has planned that the paring knife and meat chopper would come from the 10 cent store."

"There are far too many foolish fads in use in the schools and they must be done away with. The school department is imposing on good business sense and on the tax payers."

SARGENT WOULD 'SWEAR' DEBS

Washington, March 11 (A.P.)—Attorney General Sargent is inclined to approve a request by Eugene V. Debs Socialist leader and others whose sentences for violation of war acts have been commuted, unless applied for in regular channels.

Representative Berger, Socialist Wisconsin, is seeking to have Debs sign application for a re mit in the latter case in order to aid, [illegible] ex- cutive by law.

"If this results in Debs he will abide by the laws governing everyone else," Mr. Sargent said today. "It is my informal opinion that he is not entitled to clemency."

The Attorney General is of the opinion also that if civil rights are restored through a pardon applied for by another person the recipient must take the oath to the Constitution which is required when pardons are granted in the regular order.

DOCTOR CHOKES TO DEATH ON ROLL; WIFE GETS $7500

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 11 (A.P.)—A sealed verdict opened in Supreme Court here today awarded Mrs. Puella A. Scott of this city a judgment of $7,500 against the Massachusetts Accident Insurance Company for the death of her husband Dr. Walter A. Scott, former Falls health officer. Mrs. Scott claimed her husband's death was due directly to choking on a piece of Parker House roll. The insurance company maintained that he died from natural causes.

QUEEN VICTORIA BANS LOW NECKS AT COURT

Madrid, March 11 (A.P.)—Queen Victoria is soon to establish a precedent as regards women's gowns to be worn at court and during receptions here, in compliance with the wishes of Pope Pius, the Queen will wear long dresses with a high cut bodice and collar. The sleeves will be long.

Decollete gowns and gowns with short sleeves or no sleeves at all are condemned. The new dress with which Queen Victoria will set the new style of fashion will be of gold brocade.

The means of the Queen are follows comparatively a [illegible] Spain who are in position to do so.

COOLIDGE'S FRIEND REJECTED BY SENATORS

Washington, March 11 (A.P.)—The Senate Judiciary committee voted 7 to 6 today against the nomination of Wallace McCamant of Oregon, a friend of President Coolidge, to be a Federal Circuit Court judge.

Seven members of the committee were absent and it was agreed that they should be polled before a report on the nomination was returned to the Senate. Chairman Cummins hopes to complete the poll within a day or two.

Legislators at Funeral

North Weymouth, March 11 (A.P.)—A delegation from both branches of the Legislature attended the funeral of Representative Frederick A. Warren of the Second Plymouth district, whose home was in this village. Burial was in Union cemetery here. The Masonic ritual was given.

BRITISH ARMY 159,400 MEN, EXCEPTING INDIA

London, March 11 (A.P.).—The army estimates made public today show a net decrease of £2,000,000 from those of last year. The gross estimates are £42,[illegible],000, and the net £40,000,000 ($200,123,000). The personnel, exclusive of India, is 159,400 officers and 1,209 men. The strength of the army reserve on April 1 will be 50,000. Acid Stomach
PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the sour, gassy waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Insist upon "Phillips". Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any druggist.

changing public opinion on this vitally interesting question. Its sole object is to arrive at a correct conclusion regarding what public opinion IS on the subject. We don't care HOW you vote. But please take advantage of this opportunity.

This issue is without doubt one of the most important now facing the people of this country, and the Hearst papers seek a practical referendum to determine whether the people of the United States consider the Volstead act in its present form the will of the people or whether they want a change.

So help us reach an honest conclusion by marking a ballot and mailing it to the office of the American. We want YOUR vote, reader. We want the vote of every adult in your home. Also those of your neighbors. Just give us a few seconds of your time by marking and mailing the ballot below. No one will be made aware of your name and address. We ask you to append the coupon only as evidence of your good faith.

The Boston Evening American will continue to print daily the results of the balloting all over the country. This will give readers an opportunity to judge public opinion in places other than where they live.

Hundreds of ballots rolled into the Boston Evening American office today. In the first mail 468 votes favored modification of the Volstead act to permit manufacture of light wines and beer and 19 were opposed. The next largest vote was 640 opposed to the existing prohibition law and 33 in favor.

A total of 567 in this same mail recorded themselves in favor of the modification of the present law to permit the manufacture and sale of 2¾ per cent alcoholic content beer with 58 opposed to such modification. In this same batch of votes 491 persons favored local option and 104 opposed it.

unofficial newspaper polls on prohibition, the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon League declared in a statement today.

The league holds, the statement said, that "straw ballots upon questions which has been decided in a legal and orderly manner by the whole electorate by the methods provided in the constitution, not only serve no good purpose, but actually create a false impression."

Opportunity for repeated voting, frequently ambiguous character of ballots and the limited number who participate in any voting make such tests of public opinion valueless," the committee said.

"The irreconcilable and thirsty minority," it said, "is always more active in such ballots than the majority."

Methods of the unofficial wet committee of the House were condemned in the statement, which was signed by Bishop Thomas Nicholson, president of the league, and eighteen others.

Doctors Have Prescribed It For Over 33 Years

What Doctors Write

"I have used Gude's Pepto-Mangan for several years and think it the best of its kind."

"I found its use very satisfactory and am prescribing it now right along."

"I have been using Gude's Pepto-Mangan in my practice for 10 years or more with the best results. I have found it the best form of iron I have ever used. The weakest or most irritable stomach bears it perfectly."

"I find Gude's Pepto-Mangan most excellent. Prescribe it almost exclusively."

If you feel the need of a good general tonic, it seems but natural to use a tonic which has been and is today being prescribed by thousands of doctors. Physicians for over 33 years have been prescribing Gude's Pepto-Mangan as a quick and efficient tonic. Its prompt tonic power has been abundantly demonstrated by hundreds of careful blood tests at the hands of experts. It is entirely different from the myriads of unscientific preparations and "tonics" which physicians know to be of little practical value.

Prescribe Gude's Pepto-Mangan for yourself TODAY and watch the results. Your druggist has it in both liquid and tablet form.

There is only one Pepto-Mangan, that is Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

The Love Story of a Boston Girl Who Wants Only One Man---and the Husband Who Strayed

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR, employed at the Boston Public Library, has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS, Boston real estate man, for nearly a year when he asks her to free him from their engagement. He tells her that he has fallen in love with her best friend, FAY SHIRLEY, a Beacon Hill flirt.

Sylvia, heart-broken, gives him up, greatly to the satisfaction of her Aunt Agnes, "AUNT AGONY," the shrewd old maid who reared her. She calls Ranny Phelps a lazy good-for-nothing and advises Sylvia to marry PETER WILK, a Boston business man of good family.

Sylvia is staggered by her first household bills. She decides to pay with her aunt's money wedding gift.

As the time draws near for the wedding of Fay and Ranny, Fay tells Sylvia that they have decided they don't love each other enough to marry. And Sylvia, herself, discovers that Fay is seeing a great deal of her old beau, EDDIE CARTER, a State street wholesale merchant.

On a moonlit May night, Peter gives a Concord Lake picnic in Sylvia's honor, and the crowd of young people play hide-and-seek in the dark woods, like children. Sylvia finds herself paired off with Ranny Phelps, who has had rather too much to drink. He makes love to her, tells her that he and Fay have ended their engagement, and that after all Sylvia is the only girl he loves. She recklessly suggests that they elope, then and there! And they do.

Ranny soon tires of his honeymoon in the little hamlet of George's Mills, N. H., and longs for his friends back in Boston. So back he and Sylvia go, and rent a Beacon street flat that Sylvia calls The Nest. Although she would have loved a little house with a garden, she makes up her mind to be content with the flat. But Ranny is restless there and is never happy unless they have company or unless he is out playing poker. And Sylvia has to face the fact that he is bored not only with marriage, but with her! She plans a party to be given one Saturday night in The Nest. Fay comes early and dances with Ranny. Sylvia, sick with jealousy, takes him away from her, half jokingly.

CHAPTER XIV

RANNY looked from Fay to his wife. Her face was flushed and he could see that she was on the verge of tears, even though her mouth smiled.

Fay saw it, too, and gave Ranny a little push toward his wife.

"Go on and dance with her," she laughed, "I've got to go and look after my punch anyway." And she walked into the dining room, where the fruit punch that she had made was sparkling in its big glass bowl like a lemon-colored lake.

Fay had a way all her own of attracting men to her side as an arc light attracts moths. And it wasn't two minutes before Sally's "Woody" was out in the dining room, begging her for a cup of punch.

The music whirred to its end and Ranny dropped Sylvia and followed Woody with some kind of mumbled excuse to Sylvia.

She turned and met Sally March's big angry eyes as they stood alone in the living room.

"The Deserted Women—a Melodrama in One Act!" said Sally with a hard little laugh. "I wish you'd tell me what all the men find in Fay Shirley that makes her so dogoned attractive to them." Her brows twisted in a frown.

"Pep! She has it, and it's the most alluring thing a woman can have," Sylvia answered. "Beauty and brains don't count for a thing beside it."

"I have a lot of pep myself!" remarked Sally, as if to herself. Her

WHITEMAN SUED OVER DEAD BABY

Former Chorus Girl Says She Eloped With Paul When He Was "Just a Fiddler"

New York, March 11 (Universal).—The royal skeleton in the closet of his majesty Paul Whiteman, reigning king of jazz, came out into the open, stalked with sepulchral and not too regal rattle into Supreme Court, and performed there an indecorous danse macabre.

He had been the restless son of a somewhat prominent family in Denver. His father, a professor in a music conservatory, was director of music in the churches of the Colorado city. His ambition was to educate Paul to be a great classical musician.

But the youthful Paul rebelled. He didn't want to be a classical musician. He got himself a job as fiddler in a cheap Denver theatre where a stock musical comedy was playing.

In the front row of the chorus was a little girl, a very young little girl, with night black hair and big roving dark eyes, whose piquant loveliness the youthful fiddler soon discovered. All the while he played he kept his eyes on her.

And he fell in love. After a brief romance he persuaded the little chorus girl—her name was Neill Stack—to elope with him. They were married in August, 1908, in Littleton, Colo.

Soon after the girl and her mother went abroad.

When they returned to America a few months later, Whiteman met them in New York. Neille was soon to have a baby. When she told him that, she says, the musician deserted her. The baby died a few months after its birth.

And it was the mother of Neille Whiteman's first wife, who dragged the old family skeleton into court She, Mrs. Calla Stack, who now resides at No. 194 West 94th street, is suing the jazz potentate for the recovery of $10,000, expended, she says, in maintaining and burying Whiteman's son, whom he had never seen.

After his first wife had divorced him, Whiteman, she says, eloped to Los Angeles with a girl known as "Jimmie" Smith. There Whiteman and "Jimmie" were married. Subsequently he came to New York and became famous. Then "Jimmie" divorced him. The jazz king's third wife is Vanda Hoff, the dancer, whom he married here in 1922.

GAS VICTIM REVIVED BY USE OF PULMOTOR

Brattleboro, Vt., March 11.—Robert Asnow, foreman for the Western Gas Construction Company of Fort Wayne, Ind., was overcome by gas while at work in one of the Twin State Gas & Electric Company's gas holders.

Dr. E. L. Tracy and Dr. W. Hanes attended him after emergency treatment and will appear in Rockbury District Court tomorrow, police said.

GETS OTIS ARRESTED IN FIGHT

Unloaded Pistol Is Found on Mrs. Damdacher Following Struggle Over Gem

Arrested at the home of Leonard Otis, Alton place, Brookline, early today, on charges of drunkenness and carrying a revolver without a license, Mrs. Anna M. Damdacher, 41, of Peterboro street, Back Bay, a bobbed-haired brunette, later swore out a warrant at the Back Bay police station charging Otis with robbery and assault and battery.

Mrs. Damdacher was arraigned in Brookline court and asked for a continuance, which the court granted. Her face was scarred by scratches and her mouth was noticeably swollen. She is charged with carrying a .32-calibre hammerless revolver, which was not loaded.

She was arrested early today on complaint of Otis' mother.

According to the police, she went to the Otis apartment accompanied by two men and a woman. Police were called, it is said, following an altercation with Otis.

SHE GETS WARRANT.

After being released on bail in Brookline, she went to the Back Bay police station later and entered a complaint against Otis charging him with assaulting her and taking a $1,000 diamond ring from her finger.

She said that Otis and a woman companion had visited her apartment earlier in the evening and that drinks were served. During the evening, she said, Otis knocked her down and took the ring from her finger. She said she went to Otis' apartment to recover the ring.

Judge Palmer issued a warrant charging Otis with robbery and assault and battery.

AWAITS HUSBAND'S RETURN.

When Mrs. Damdacher was arraigned in Brookline court she was accompanied by Special Officer John F. Lowney of Back Bay station who was armed with a warrant for Otis.

She told the court that her husband is paymaster on the U. S. S. Utah and asked that the case be continued a month until her husband returns to the city. The court granted her request and she was admitted to $100 bail.

Otis was arrested following her arrangement and will appear in Roxbury District Court tomorrow, police said.

LIFE FEARS THE BRAVE

THIS is a thought I read somewhere sometime:

"Life is afraid of the brave."

And when I am accused of living too dangerously I like to quote it.

Life retreats before the offensive of one who WILL NOT be beaten, will not allow circumstances to overpower him.

I love to see the young brave and afraid of nothing, believing in their star, ready for any fate. "Let us go forth to battle like lover setting out to meet his love."

The battle of life, I mean—the battle every one of us has to wage, never matter his station in life.

I have had to do with many young people. I love them and they confide in me when ever there is a difficulty, a tangled question to settle, a hard moment to face. I am not gentle of speech, but rather positive. And I have a strong, helping hand. When I give advice I put some little twist to my words which make them more acceptable to the young people than if I were solemn, pompous and dictatorial—of the cow on the road, of the pace I set in my car, of the rain, of the wind, of the sun because it freckled her nose, of the thunder and lightning because she had known them sometimes to strike. She was afraid of the dark, afraid of her own company, afraid to awake in the morning and face the day; of everything was she afraid!

I implored her to think what life could offer her if that remained her attitude.

Life would thrust her aside, withhold all its sweets from her. Life has not time to bother with the timid soul. Life wants a fight and will bully the coward as one who is no use in the plan of things. Thus I spoke, and I think she listened.

In my house there happened to be a lifelong contrast to this frightened girl—a young creature, who, although not yet 17, faces life gaily, her face set squarely into the sun, her great blue eyes full of light, confidence and hope.

I look at her with pride. even while my heart trembles sometimes for the disillusions she will have to overcome. But better a thousand times the disillusions met with a brave spirit than to fear life and have it pass you by. I long to take this child by the hand and say,

"Go ahead, fear nothing. Be of good cheer. Life is afraid of the brave. Bear anything. Be the stronger of the two, and conquer!"

(Copyright, 1926, by Marie, Queen of Rumania.)

NEW FIGHT FOR MRS. ROGERS

Bay State Congresswoman Likes Her Job and Will Seek Reelection

Washington, March 11.—Mrs. Edith N. Rogers, Republican, of Massachusetts, one of the three members of the feminine line in the 69th Congress, likes her job and is going to fight for re-election. If she must face defeat, she announced today, she will "go down fighting."

Mrs. Rogers has no thought of quitting the political game. She said "I am going to remain in politics, if voters continue to support me. It is intensely interesting and offers a field for women who will grow as they take advantage of their opportunities."

The other two members of the feminine group are just as pleased the style of the forum and they, too, seek re-election.

They are Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Democrat, of New Jersey, and Mrs. Florence Kahn, Republican of California. They have no eye on the presidency because, as Mrs. Kahn explains, that would be "perfectly absurd since 'years of political experience are necessary.'" Mrs. Kahn has two opponents, but hopes for success.

Mrs. Norton hopes to get the Democratic nomination which, in her district, is tantamount to nomination.

MAINE STUDENT KILLED STEALING TRAIN RIDE

Bangor, Me., March 11 (A.P.).—The mangled body of a youth, later identified as that of Louis Martel of Lewiston, a post-graduate student at Maine Central Institute at Pittsfield and a star athlete, was discovered near Union Station today shortly after train No. 127 from the West pulled in. It is believed that Martel jumped aboard the train at Pittsfield to ride "blind baggage" but his city on his way to Orono to attend the University of Maine basketball tournament and that in attempting to leave the train at the foot of Railroad street slipped and fell under the wheels.

One Killed in Rail Wreck

Hamilton, N. Y., March 11 (N.S.).—Edward Schwartz, a fireman, of Utica, was killed and three other trainmen injured when a N. Y. C. & W. freight train was derailed here today.

"BIG THREE" TO DEBATE 'CURSE OF EDUCATION'

"Give us something funny" was the demand of the famous Big Three Harvard, Yale and Princeton—when the Intercollegiate Debating League offered the three colleges a subsidy for their annual wrangle to deal with the advisability of dropping military science at the universities. And something funny it was for while the other members of the league will argue this question right and left March 27, the Big Three members will be laughing the way through the subject they selected themselves namely "Resolved that education is a curse of the present age."

VIRGINIA STATE SENATOR EXPELLED AS A FORGER

Richmond, Va., March 11 (A.P.).—State Senator Alfred C. Smith of Norfolk County was expelled from the Virginia senate by a vote of 30 to 7 on charges in the Norfolk Peanut Pay Association that Smith had been convicted of forgery in South Carolina in 1923 and in Virginia in 1914. The last named was the first impeachment proceedings in the history of the state. Pete Cote of Holy Cross Tells How to Play Shortstop

TEAM PLAY BIG FACTOR IN SUCCESS

"One-Hand Plays Not Always Benefit to Team," Says Peppy Captain

THIS is the first of a series of stories by college baseball stars on how to play the various positions and how to make good on the diamond. There will be about twenty stories, one each week-day, in the Boston Evening American. Bill Considine secured the stories by personal interviews with stars of various New England colleges. They will prove a baseball education for college, school and sandlot players.

By BILL CONSIDINE.

"THERE should . . . two big guns in the head of every team, star in baseball. Those are team play and working to win all the time," says Pete Cote of Holy Cross.

"Without team play, a ball player can't get anywhere," continued the scrappy little Holy Cross shortstop.

"You can't pull off sensational one-hand plays all the time and be of real use to the team. Here at Holy Cross, Jack Barry, our coach, won't stand for any one man or sensational plays. There are nine men and a coach on the Holy Cross team and each works in harmony and co-operates with every other one of the ten all the time.

"Any youngster who can play baseball ought to get a great deal out of it. That is what makes a real player—to have a man who knows baseball inside out, who can teach the inside tricks and handle his men in charge of the team.

"We have been very fortunate in having Jack Barry in charge of our baseball team. Barry was a former Holy Cross player, then a big league player and manager. There isn't a phase of the game that he is not thoroughly conversant with. He knows how to teach men, too. Jack doesn't bawl a man out for a mistake. He calls him aside and tells him about it quietly. And the man usually remembers, too.

"I CAN recall some of the rules that Jack gave me in freshman. Be on your toes on every pitch, was one of them. Cover second base on a right field hit all the time was another. A third one was to do everything in practice and then it would be instinctive in a ball game. That's the way Jack Barry teaches the players at Holy Cross.

"But you have to want to win all the time and to be able to sacrifice a personal ambition or desire to the good of the team in order to play baseball. Those two ideas should be in the mind of every ball player."

Pete is well known in the basketball fans of Cambridge, Salem and Nashua. In the latter two places he played Summer ball.

Cote comes from Cambridge and made a name there for himself before going to Holy Cross. He is a most sought after college player by big league clubs.

Pete doesn't feel one bit different now that he is captain of a big college baseball team than he did when playing for Cambridge Latin. His steadiness and a studious, analytic mind are probably a contributing great part for his wonderful work at shortstop.

Buck Freeman, Holy Cross outfielder, will be heard from tomorrow.

STRIBLING AND TUNNEY BOUT CALLED OFF

Miami, Fla., March 11 (A.P.).—The match between Gene Tunney and Young Stribling, set for Friday night, was declared off today.

Helen Wills Still Wins

Nice, France, March 11 (A.P.).—Miss Helen Wills advanced another step in the singles of the Nice lawn tennis tournament today by defeating Miss Joan Ridley of England 6-0, 6-2.

In the mixed doubles Miss Wills and Charles S. Kingsley defeated Mlle Millicent Stanley and F. A. Dean at 6—8, 6—0.

Miss Wills' one-sided victory over Miss Ridley, a member of the British Wightman Cup team, was a disappointment to British tennis enthusiasts on the Riviera, who had expected a much more even battle. Miss Wills lost her first two services in the second set while attempting a new slow-cut delivery. Then reverting to her regular service she easily swamped her opponent.

The American champion is taking advantage of a lack of serious opposition in the Nice tournament to work on her ground strokes in preparation for Wimbledon, where she is expected to face Suzanne Lenglen again.

Berlin, March 11 (A.P.)—The German Tennis Federation today barred Irene Neppach, woman champion of German, from all participation in German tennis tournaments until further notice. This penalty was assessed because she had disregarded the Federation's orders forbidding her to enter competition on the Riviera, where she was defeated decisively by Helen Wills.

Battling Chester Thomas, one of the good colored boxers hanging his hat in the city, is running about the city hunting for action. Thomas would like to meet Young Jack Frank Moody Hamilton or any other welter or middleweight battlers, for any of the local clubs. His opponent doesn't make any difference one way or another. He has won over Panama Joe Gans, Joe Egan and various other good battlers.

GERMAN SWIMMING STARS AT BROOKLINE TONIGHT

The swimming enthusiasts of greater Boston will be given an opportunity to watch Erich Rademacher and Gustav Froelich, two German experts, perform under the auspices of the Brookline Swimming Club, tonight, at the municipal natatorium in the Wealthy Town.

In the line of sport at large recently these athletes broke one world's record and three American marks. Rademacher and his partner are out to continue their record-breaking invasion before they journey back to foreign soil.

A shake up in tonight's aquatic meet was made following a telegram forwarded to the Brookline Swimming Association by Froelich. Instead of swimming in a 200-yard medley race, free style and back stroke, he has asked to be a scratch man in a 100-yard handicap sprint event.

In conjunction with this Froelich will give exhibition performances at which he also specializes. His running mate, Rademacher, has also made a few changes in his entries. The 200-meter and 220-yard races are what the German prefers, figuring that he could hand the records a terrific lacing.

Their request have been granted by the officials and they will be pitted against the best swimmers in the country, as the events will not be marred by poor competition.

Ethel McGary, a representative of the Women's swimming Association of New York and her teammate, Helen Meany, will also compete in the exhibition, aiming for new records. Miss McGary has toured Florida, where she gave a large number of exhibitions while in the Sunny South she acquired the habit of lowering world's records.

Training Camp Gossip

THE PHILLIES are to play their first big league exhibition game today at Bradenton against the New York Giants. The Philadelphians are still minus two regular outfielders Leach and Williams.

THE ATHLETICS report for last an exhibition game 7 to 6 to the Baltimore Orioles. The next contest will be an intersquad game at Fort Myers.

THE PIRATES have contained their first casualty. Pie Traynor, the star third baseman, wrenched his ankle badly sliding into second and will probably be incapacitated for a week.

THE SENATORS will guard the pitching arms of their old reliable veterans during the training season according to the plan of Manager Harris. Alshauer, Gerlock, Koehler and Rosh will not be worked in spring practice games.

THE CLEVELAND INDIANS were visited by Mrs. Ferdie Pacific of America's only woman major league baseball club owner. She is greeting the Tribe on Uncle Sam's Cleveland ers found the opposition for 10 hits and 10 runs.

THE CHICAGO WHITE SOX have been kept indoors by rain, and their workouts have been in the gymnasium. Outing is played with the rest cure of his men.

THE ST LOUIS BROWNS dropped their first exhibition game to the Dodgers although Hargrave, the Brown catcher shared a home run. The Brooklynites collected nine singles.

THE CARDINALS have been idle due to continuous rain. The pitchers are waiting for regular battin and it is thought that Hornsby and staff will be the youngest in years.

THE CINCINNATI REDS will play a return game with the Indians today, with Mays pitching. Cuthbert was injured against Cleveland since the unfortunate accident with cook Ray Chapman his life in New York.

THE TIGERS squad has been augmented by several outfielders and infielders and stiff workouts are the order of procedure. Among the new arrivals is Joe Hatchett, formerly of the Virginia Military Institute, who will make his big time debut.

THE BROOKLYN DODGERS are well pleased with the array of twirling talent which seems to be in store for them. Petty Jess Barnes and Rus McWeeny have been doing nobly. Watt, Marquard and Standaert are also producing the goods.

THE GIANTS have been strengthened by the arrival of Long George Kelly veteran first baseman and general utility player of last season. His appearance was the feature of the day.

THE YANKEES are still paying some attention to baseball although they are distressed by such remarks as the latest from Babe Ruth. He is now bemoaning his new weight and seems much distressed at having so little poundage to carry about with him.

BRUINS OFF FOR PITTSBURGH

Owner Charles F. Adams, manager Art Ross and the entire Bruins hockey squad will leave the South Station this afternoon at 4 o'clock with a party of Royal Rooters, bound for Pittsburgh, which city they will arrive in tomorrow morning at 9.30 o'clock.

The Bruins are scheduled to cross hockey sticks with the crack Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets in what is considered the crucial game of the National Hockey League.

Boston is leading the Pirates in the league standing by one point, and should they win tomorrow night's game in Pittsburgh they will be all set for the playoff for the league championship.

The playoff is what all Boston folks are desirous of seeing. Interest is so great that arrangements have been made by which the Bruins Pittsburgh game will come to the Boston Arena by direct wire tomorrow night, so that the fans will be kept posted on the outcome of the tussle.

Art Ross says: "Every member of the team is fit and ready to show his best tomorrow night, and I sure by believe that Boston is ready to win for the New England hockey fans!"

M'NAMARA TEAM HAS 2-LAP LEAD

New York, March 11 (A.P.).—The McNamara-Georgetti team had a two-lap lead over the field in the six-day bicycle race at the 33rd hour today. They had pedalled 1,330 miles and eight laps. The early morning racing was marked by a series of sprints, which reached the unusual total of 58. Every team scale distanced by such remarks as the latest from Babe Ruth. He is now bemoaning his new weight and seems much distressed at having so little poundage to carry about with him.

HARVARD NOTES

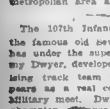
The basketball election has been postponed until next week because of the sudden illness of Captain Wendell Weeks, the Bear Brummel of Harvard coaches, is confined to his room in Cambridge with a heavy cold.

Coach Fred Mitchell, well aware of the ability of the freshman twirlers, has carefully tried the youngsters in the nursery both at the cage. Mitchell is more than pleased with the work of Monte Whitmore and Bill Malley from Norwood.

Coach Cowles of the tennis team has set next Monday for the turnout of the Harvard freshman tennis aspirants. Practice will begin two days later in the freshman locker building.

When the varsity polsists start on their Southern trip to Pinehurst, North Carolina, during the Spring vacation, they will be without the services of Malden White, who has fallen under the faculty ban.

Bill Tilden, the new Harvard hockey leader, is expected to report for practice for the next week to Coach Fred Mitchell. Another of the Crimson will be Xavier Zarnhey, the mainstay of this year's ball nine.



Breaking the Tape by STED CHANDLER

The Military Athletic League indoor championships at the 107th Regiment Armory, New York next week, will feature some hard-fought races between the soldier athletes. There is great rivalry between teams representing the National Guard outfits from both the metropolitan area and upstate.

The 107th Infantry, which was the famous old seventh Regiment, has under the supervision of Tommy Dwyer, developed a most promising track team which now appears as a real contender in the Military meet. Dwyer was once a champion Olympic runner, representing the colors of the old Mohawk A. C.

Fourteen Princeton athletes are entered in the K. of C. meet at Madison Square Garden, March 16, which is also the occasion of the all-around contest between Hoff, Osborne and Norton. This will be the first time the Tigers have been seen in New York in open competition this year.

It is quite evident that some [illegible] advised whereby the [illegible] track meets may be standardized and improved upon. There is room for reform in the arrangement of the events, in the order in which they are run off and in the system of judging, especially in the dashes.

Speaking of the Hoff-Osborne-Norton affair, it doesn't seem to us a very good reason which Tony Plansky gave for his withdrawal. If all athletes withdrew when they were uncertain of victory, there would be no use in the language for the word "competition."

If the plans of those in charge go through the Philadelphia sesquicentennial meet will take on the local aspect of Little Olympics. All the best foreign contenders have been, or will be, invited, and many of them will undoubtedly accept. The games coming in early July, should find our own track teams at the height of their outdoor form.

Boston will see what should be some of the finest competition in both field and track events that the year will produce, when the teams representing California and Southern California appear in the I. C. 4-A outdoor meet at Cambridge in May. Dean Cromwell, the U. S. C. coach, is without a peer when it comes to developing champions.

Horween as Coach Means Fighting Harvard Grid Team

NEW PILOT IS BUT 27; WAS STAR

Staff of Assistant Coaches Is Not Chosen Yet; Big Change in the Crimson Policies

By TED LANCH

WHEN Athletic Director Bill Bingham announced Arnold Horween as the next Crimson football coach the Harvard grid game obtained its best break.

No better choice, when the morale of Harvard football was low, could have been made than the appointment of one of the most aggressive football players that has ever thrilled the crowds at the Stadium.

The Harvard Club of Chicago, it is reported, was largely responsible for the movement to name Horween, with L. D. Smith, an all-American end on the Crimson team of 1917, as one of the prime backers. Horween is a resident of Chicago.

Horween is of the fighting quality of the late Percy Haughton. Harvard followers can rest assured that Harvard football will be of the hard, aggressive type thru Fall.

Ranking as the greatest line plunger at Harvard, Horween now comes into a seat where he can bring his alma mater to the fore by a type of football that has been missing for many a year.

Captain Tim Coady of Newton, is exactly the same type of player as the new coach and the two will work hand in hand in installing the new Horween system.

Throughout the seige of guesses and rumors of prospective coaches, Coady has been a firm believer in Horween. Horween was his second choice in Lou Leary, who refused the position last Fall.

NEW POLICIES.

The pans of Horween are as yet unknown His staff of coaches will have to be sanctioned by Bill Bingham, but the public can feel assured that the past system where good coaches as assistants were turned down by those in the "know" will not be in vogue with the new director.

Lee Leary, Jimmy Knox, Eskie Clark, Charlie Hubbard and Ralph Horween, a brother of the new head coach, are the most likely men to be on the long list of assistant coaches. Of these members of the board of pigskin tutors will be chosen by Coach Horween and Bill Bingham, when the mentor reaches town from Chicago next week.

The appointment of Horween brings another phase in the general line of Harvard sports. It has put certain men at the head of the various sports who are of the fighting type and not the kind that "thinks more of the white line in preference to the working-his-way-thruogh student.

Bill Bingham was a poor youth working his way through school in a mill. Eskie Clarke, the new assistant treasurer of the Harvard A. A., was by no means well financed in his college course. Horween is the son of an emigrant.

There was some talk at Cambridge today that Horween, because of his twenty-seven years, will have the services of an experienced man in moulding together the next Crimson eleven.

Charlie Daly has been mentioned, but the major is determined that he will be found in his assistant professor's chair teaching military science next Fall.

Captain Coady is strong for an early start with the Spring Practice and this matter will be decided upon when the staff of assistants has received Bill Bingham's approval

Choice a Surprise to Many Harvard Men

Horween hails from Chicago. He is the younger of the two brothers who did much to keep Harvard in the gridiron spotlight from 1916 to 1920. The elder brother, Ralph, graduated from Harvard in 1919, after starring in the backfield for three years, and returned the following year as a kicking coach under Fisher. Both Horweens, and especially Arnold, whose brilliancy in Harvard's victory over Oregon at Pasadena, Cal., January 1, 1920,

Arnold Horween was born in Chicago 27 years ago, the son of a Russian immigrant, and he is the youngest head coach that Harvard has had for many years.

POPULAR AS STUDENT.

He was very popular in his undergraduate days, being captain of the 1917 informal eleven as well as leader of the 1920 varsity team and president of the class of 1920

He prepared at a private school in Chicago and entered Harvard in 1913. He became a gridiron hero almost immediately, being the outstanding player of the Crimson yearling eleven which defeated the Yale Cubs, 21 to 0. The following year he captained the informal eleven In 1918 he left college temporarily to join the navy.

When football was resumed at Cambridge in 1919, Horween reported, but was slow in getting started. Scholastic difficulties forced him to keep out of the early season battles, and when he finally joined the squad he was shunted around from one position to another.

At the close of that season, however, Harvard accepted an invitation to play Oregon at Pasadena, Cal., on New Year's Day and it was in the game that Arnold gained immorta. fame

His brother, Ralph, who was one of the best of the Harvard backfield group, was forced out of the contest in the opening minutes with a severe shoulder injury, and Arnold was sent in to take his place.

PROVES ABILITY.

Before the battle was over he had proven his right to be ranked with the greatest of Harvard football luminaries. He was great on the offensive and even greater on the defensive. In the closing minutes of the game, which Harvard won by the score of 7 to 6, the Crimson made an 80-yard advance down the field, only to have the final whistle blow with the ball but a scant six inches from the goal line. In that drive, Horween carried the ball on all but three rushes, and gained 67 of the 80 yards. And time after time, in each period, he saved his team by his phenomenal defensive play.

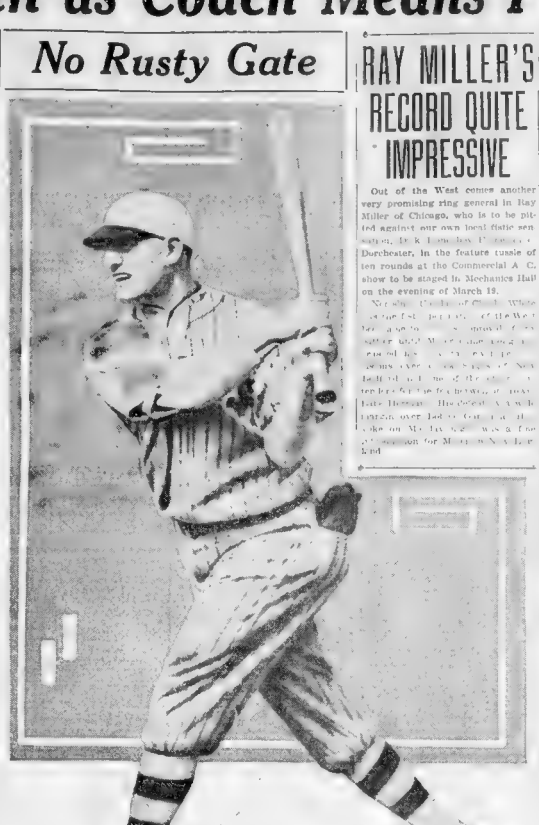
Upon the return of the squad to Boston he was elected captain. His team defeated Yale the next Fall, 3 to 0.

BILL FOR PAID SUNDAY BASEBALL KILLED

The bill to permit taking collections at Sunday baseball games has been killed in the House.

Representative James J. Twohig of South Boston, sponsor for the bill, was defeated in his attempt to overturn, an adverse committee report, by a vote of 83 to 124.

No Rusty Gate



Harry Riconda, who looks good to handle the hot ones around third base for the Braves this season, doesn't swing exactly like a rusty beer sign now, does he? He was once with Connie Mack's Athletics, was then shipped to Portland, Oregan, where he was acquired by the Tribe. He has been going nicely down at St. Pete, as if he keeps his hinges oiled as they seem to be in this picture, will be a valuable addition to the Bancroft fold.

A PIRATE OF HEARTS :: By Beatrice Burton

The Thrilling Love Story of a Boston Girl and the Husband Who Strayed

dark eyes were on Fay, who was pouring out her punch for the two men.

How Fay Wins

"There, you two old club-drinkers!" she was saying, as she looked from one of them to the other with her brilliant green eyes, "take that, and then let's frolic again!"

She came dancing into the room where Sally and Sylvia stood, and turned on the music again. "Want me to show you how Ann Pennington does the Charleston?" she asked, and without waiting for an answer, she began to do it.

Before she had finished, Eddie Carter, chewing peanuts as usual, came in, followed by Peter Wilk, who had brought Lolly Phelps with him. A few seconds later the rest of the old "crowd" arrived in a body.

The girls exclaimed over the "cuteness" of The Nest and the men slapped Ranny on the back and told him that he was the luckiest fellow in the world. And Ranny laughed, but said nothing.

The party warmed up and the cigaret smoke grew more blue and thick. The dancing became more riotous as the punch sank lower, and lower in its bowl on the dining room table. Glasses stood about everywhere—most of them half emptied. Ranny and Fay went about with a pitcher filling them up.

At ten o'clock, when the fun and the excitement were at their height, the front door bell rang loudly and shrilly though the little flat. The merry-makers scarcely heard it, but Sylvia, who was squeezing oranges in the kitchen, jumped at the sound of it.

"Now who in the world can that be?" she asked Lolly Phelps, who was helping her. "You go to the door, will you, while I wash my hands? They're all gooey with orange juice."

She opened the door that led into the dining room and stopped dead still on the threshold.

The music in the living room had stopped abruptly and the dancers all stared the doorway of the little hall—that is all except Eddie Carter, who had "passed out" and lay stretched on the gay cushions of the davenport. He snored loudly and his hands that were clasped on his stomach rose and fell with every breath.

Wrath Arrives

Sylvia walked forward into the room to see who or what had cast this pall upon the party. There, in the doorway, stood Aunt Agony!

Behind her, like a plump shadow, stood Peter Wilk's sister, Sarah.

Sarah was an old maid, but not the kind of old maid that Aunt Agony was. She was fat and comfortable-looking, and she was cheerful at all times

She smiled at Sylvia now, from behind Aunt Agony's thin shoulder

"We thought we'd just stop in and call on our way from the picture show—Aggie and I," she said to Sylvia, and her voice was apologetic.

Sylvia managed to smile, and she went forward to kiss Aunt Agony's sallow cheek, but her Aunt drew her head up with the movement of an angry old war-horse.

"Well, this is quite an Arabian nights' entertainment, isn't it?" she snorted, and her eyes bored like gimlets right down into Sylvia's conscience.

Behind her she heard Ranny give a wild laugh. "Hardly that, Aunt Agony!" he said, and came forward. "Let me take your coats—come in and sit down."

Aunt Agony gave him a look that would have withered an ordinary person, and then her sharp eyes traveled to the fat figure of Eddie Carter, prone on the davenport.

"What's the matter with him?" she asked, "what's he there for?"

Sylvia couldn't answer. She couldn't even think. Her head seemed to be going around and around like a merry-go-round.

Dumbly she watched her aunt step forward, turning up her nose at the smell of cigaret smoke as she went, and tasted the punch from the glass bowl in the dining room.

Tastes Rum

"Alcohol! Spirits! I knew it!" she said accusingly to her niece. "This is a drinking party!" She looked at Sylvia, with her lips moving silently as if she had more to say, but was too shocked to find her voice.

And before any of them realized just what had happened, she was gone, with Sarah Wilk puffing behind her like a small tug behind a man-o'-war.

Eddie Carter opened one eye and looked around at the crowd. "The old lady!" he observed, "wanting to know what was the matter with me. Couldn't she see what was the matter with me?" Then he closed his eye again and went on snoring.

Everyone laughed, but somehow or other the mad gayety of the party was gone. The music seemed "tinny," the dancing tiresome, and nobody seemed to have anything to say or to sing or to do. By eleven o'clock everyone had gone and the little flat looked dreary with its litter of glasses and half-eaten sandwiches and cigaret stubs.

With his hands in his pockets, Ranny stood in the smoke-filled living room and looked down at Sylvia, who had sunk into a chair, her face covered with her hands.

She was so filled with a feeling of defeat that she felt she never could look up again. She had so wanted this party to be gay and hilarious. She had wanted to show Ranny that she didn't have to set foot outside the door of his own home to have all the pleasure that he craved.

And the thing had been a miserable failure, from beginning to end. With strong self-disgust, she remembering the moment when she had made Ranny stop dancing with Fay. Why had she done that? Why had she shown him how jealous she was? That wasn't the way to hold him! The way to hold him was by being gay and careless and amusing like Fay Shirley!

Sylvia's Lament

If Fay had been giving this party she would have been able to save it, somehow or other, even after Aunt Agony's untimely arrival. Sylvia told herself bitterly. She would have done something that would have made everyone forget Aunt Agony—her imitation of Ann Pennington, or something equally amusing.

Sylvia got up and stood looking at Ranny, shaking her head. "I guess I'm the wrong wife for you," she said. "It just isn't in me to do the things that you like to see a girl do—did you ever live through anything worse than this party to night?"

He shook his handsome head. "How much did it cost?" he asked.

"Fifty dollars."

"He whistled. "Jee-ru-sa-lem! Where did you get the jack?"

Sylvia shrugged. "Oh, it was part of Aunt Agony's wedding present to me. She gave me a hundred-dollar bill or week or so ago and told me to buy what I wanted with it—and this was what I wanted."

Suddenly she burst into tears. "Oh, Ran!" she sobbed, and reached out a hand to him. "Oh, Ran, I wanted to show you that I could be gay and peppy like Fay. Things have been so dull and dreary for us, somehow, since we've lived here in the flat! I don't know why, but they have been—and I wanted some thing that would cheer you up."

She held one of his hands close to her cheek so that her tears ran over it. He came closer to her and put both of his arms around her, holding her tight.

"Don't cry, little love" he said into her hair, "things haven't been so awfully dull and dreary for us, here in this flat, have they?"

Sylvia nodded miserably. "You know they have," she said, with the honesty of hers. "I've thought a dozen times how much happier you'd have been if you'd married Fay!"

"If I'd wanted Fay I'd have married Fay!" Ranny answered with such violence that Sylvia gasped. "Now let's cut out talking about Fay! Let's forget her."

He almost pushed her out of his arms and walked into the bedroom. By the time Sylvia had cleaned up the flat and undressed, he was sound asleep in his bed, with a magazine held in his lax fingers and a cigaret on a tray beside him, burning itself out.

She stood looking down at him. And suddenly there flashed into her mind what she had been trying to keep out of her mind all evening—the look in his face when he had held Fay in his arms as they danced.

"He's still in love with her!" she told herself. She knew now that she had never stopped being jealous of Fay—never, for a moment, since that day during their honeymoon when Ranny had refused to show her Fay's letter.

On the first of July the monthly bills came in.

There were appalling to Sylvia as she added them up one afternoon after she had set the flat in order and peeled the vegetables for dinner.

How in the world had she and Ranny spent so much money in three short weeks?—thirty-five dollars they owed the butcher! The grocer's bill was forty. And there were all sorts of little bills for gas and electric light, and ice and foo-ea, and things from the drug store—a hundred and fifteen dollars, all together!

"I suppose I could cut down on the butcher's bill," she mused, tapping her teeth with her lead pencil. "Ranny eats too much meat, anyway. He shouldn't have steak or chops for breakfast the way he does—not in this hot weather."

She finally decided to go to Aunt Agony for help and advice. For Aunt Agony was a famous manager. She could make a dollar go almost as far as a dollar used to go, back in 1913 before the great war!

And there was still fifty dollars left of Aunt Agony's wedding present

"I'll pay up the butcher with that," Sylvia decided.

As she was dressing to go to Aunt Agony's house, the telephone rang. It was Ranny calling her.

"Gosh, I'd rather chew tacks than ask you what I'm going to ask you, Sylvy," he began, and stopped.

Some instinct told Sylvia that he was going to ask her to lend him that fifty dollars, and she was right.

"Like a fool I played poker with Eddie Carter and his bunch this noon," he explained, and he sounded sheepish, "and I've run short in a month. Could you let me borrow that money of yours?"

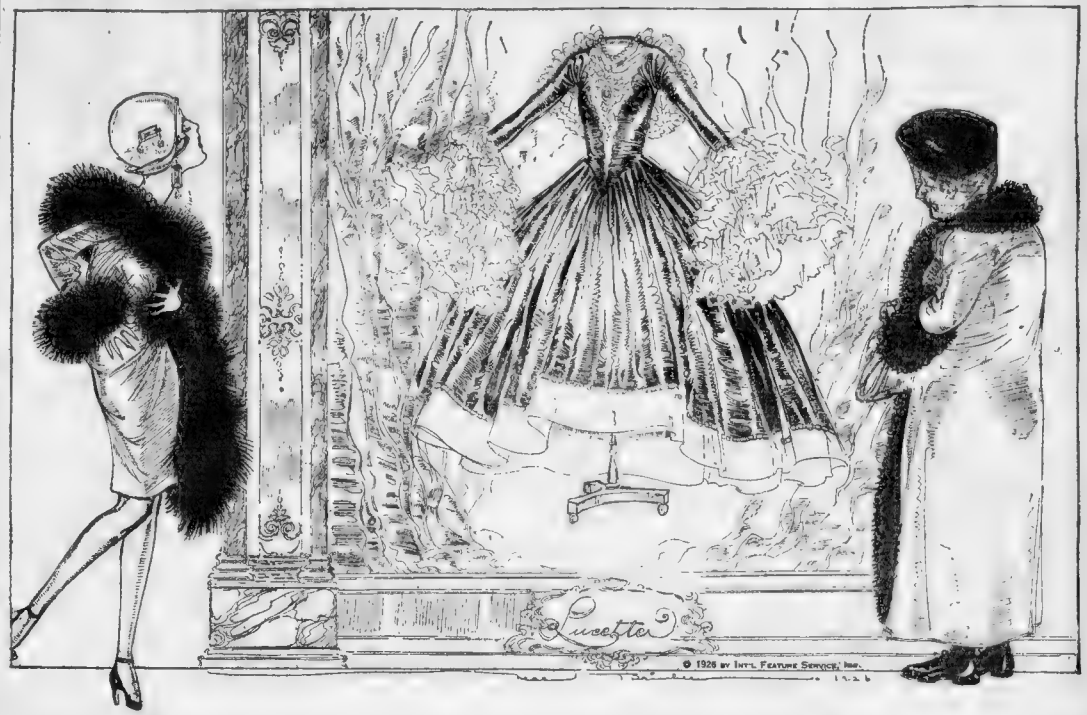
(To Be Continued)

Sylvia admits to Aunt Agony that she believes Ranny is still in love with Fay Shirley. And she begins to doubt the wisdom of her marriage, in spite of her love for Ranny.

Should a woman give her husband money to pay his poker debts? See tomorrow's Boston Evening American for her decision.

"Oh-h!" and "Ah-h!" Just Like Grandmother

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY



TAFFETA. Tight little bodices. Prim necks and sleeves. Long skirts very full. A little shorter in front than in back—with a generous sweep—and rows of ruffles.

Sounds just like our grandmothers' dresses. And looks like them, too—if you come in from the country and stand and gaze at the Spring windows.

Those same big glass show-cases are shocking the flappers to death! For what so shocking as the contemplation of leaving, even for afternoon or tea wear, the things they are wearing now—slippery, veil-like things, dresses a mere wisp of a tube, above the knees showing a French garter with a hanky tucked in it when they sit, with the last gasp in belts—if there is one, four inches from the bottom of the skirt, waist none at all; the cloth ignores the one that belongs to her and keeps on its short-cut from knee to shoulder—not to be vamped by so feminine and out-of-date thing as the curve about a damsel's middle.

So that's why she says, "OH-H-H-H! * * 1 ," and can't believe it! Taffeta—and long skirts—and the gran'mother look?

But the dear little old lady with a soft spot in her heart for taffeta and ruffles and lace and tight waists says, "AH-H-H-H!" Greeting an old friend. And so do the men who have been longing for some time for a few feminine things to find their way back into the ensemble of girls' clothes—even if just for the times they play.

How I save hours of work on washday and get my clothes whiter than ever without washboard rubbing

WASHING my clothes this new, quick way is like having a laundress. Instead of spending all Monday over the washtubs—rubbing and scrubbing the very life out of my clothes and out of myself—I now simply soak the wash in Rinso suds for an hour or two in the morning, or overnight if that is more convenient. Then I just rinse in clear water and by 10 o'clock the whole wash is blowing on the line—sweet, clean and sparkling white. The rest of the day is free for other things.

Rinso saves me money too. For it is all I need on washday. No bar soap—no washing powders—no chipped bar soap—just Rinso. Its tiny grains dissolve in a jiffy and gently loosen all the dirt and stains—so that they float away in rinsing. Once in a while I have to rub badly soiled spots between my fingers, but that is all.

I have found clothes last longer with Rinso, because now I never have to rub them threadbare on the washboard. My friends tell me Rinso is fine for their washing machines, too—so much quicker and the clothes just sparkle. Ask your grocer today for

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE HEART OF A DOCTOR

By Evangeline Weir

DR. SILL had made her last visit for the night and was about to retire when she was called upon for an accident case—one at the very door of her hospital.

She went at once to the room where they had taken the man and worked swiftly with her nurses to find the injury which had rendered him unconscious. After which she ordered him to be taken to one of the private rooms while she went over his clothing for a possible clue to his name and address.

Of the Best.

All his clothing was of the best—she had noticed that while working with him—and bore foreign marks. Not a letter nor scrap of paper were to be found in the pockets. Then her eyes fell upon the watch which had been laid aside on a table.

It was a gold watch of a style worn fifteen years ago and looked familiar to her as she turned it over in her hand. She opened it for a clew and found a photograph fitted within the case. She nearly dropped it as she looked at her own face smiling up at her. With unsteady fingers she opened the case at the back in search of the name she knew she would find there.

"James Barry Sill," she said through half-closed lips. Then, with the long familiar watch clasped in her hand, she went directly to the room where they had taken the owner.

Standing beside the cot, she looked long and critically at the unconscious face on the pillow. It was older than it should be, and the hair at the temples was quite gray, while the bandage across the chin changed the expression of the face. And yet there was a likeness—undoubtedly so—to the man whom she had thought dead for eight years. She looked down at his hand and saw that which left no doubt in her mind; the middle and index finger were of the same length.

Her husband whom she had thought dead for eight years! He had been such a trial to her while she lived. She shuddered as she thought of the old days when he had obliged her to give up her profession and take a prominent part in a society which she disliked.

It had been a mistake, their marriage, and when she heard that he had died abroad, she was filled with a sense of freedom which she was ashamed to acknowledge. His wealth had come to her, and she had used the money for a private hospital and had been happy in her work of mercy.

She Worried.

She was disturbed for her hospital more than for herself. Would he demand that she restore dollar for dollar of the money she had used and invested for his future use? Had he the right to make such a demand after his long silence—his deceit?

Her eyes went back to the face on the pillow and met those of her patient fixed upon her with the quizzical look which had so often irritated her in the old days of friction.

"You have had an accident," she explained. "You are in a hospital."

"I do not doubt it. Are you the nurse?"

"I am the doctor. It is my hospital."

"Have I met you—somewhere? Your face looks familiar."

"It probably does look familiar—I am known to a number of persons through my work."

A smile crept into her eyes.

"I hate a hospital—always have for that matter."

"And his money has made this one possible," Dr. Sill thought. Aloud she said, "We shall try to make you comfortable while you stay with us."

"Are the bandages a part of the comfort?"

"A necessary part—in a hospital. I am leaving you now, but a nurse will look in from time to time. That little button will bring her whenever you need attention."

"Thank you. Good-night, Doctor—"

"Dr. Sill," she supplied, her eyes focused on his.

She Rebelled.

There was no rest for Dr. Sill that night. She rebelled at this new problem she must work out—somehow. That her patient's mind was clear, she knew beyond a doubt. He knew her, but it pleased him, as always, to play hide and seek with her.

"I'll play the game," she said with close-set lips. "I suppose he has been living on money he took abroad with him."

The game went on for days without advantage on either side. Dr. Sill gave him every attention, such as she gave to any patient within her walls. He never complained, though there were hours when he suffered intensely. At such times she remained with him, for his eyes asked her to stay, though his lips refused to beg.

A change of heart had come to Dr. Sill—a new relationship to the erring husband—the latent motherhood ready to serve and forgive. She had forgotten herself and the hospital in her effort to save and lessen the pain in the broken and helpless man dependent upon her. She felt his response to the silence—in the absence of all words.

The crisis had come, and Dr. Sill sat beside her patient as he lay with closed eyes and labored breath. She had taken the nurse's place so that the slightest change might not escape her. She gave him a potion and his intrepid eyes held hers with the quizzical looks long familiar and resented.

"I am going on a long journey, Dr. Sill," he said, breaking the silence, "I will my body to—your hospital."

His words pained her and he saw it.

"You have nothing to regret, doctor; you have been unusually thoughtful of an unknown man thrown upon your charity."

She tried to speak, but words would not come through her stiffening lips—just mumbled sounds. A chance came over the sick man's face, and instantly the doctor took the place of the woman. She put her ear to his heart and felt her helplessness to save life as she listened to the little engine she could no longer control.

The Old Love.

His eyes were on her as she arose. In them was the old love light as she had seen it when he had wooed her. She put her hand to her throat to break the sob that choked her. So he had loved her after all—through the years—even though he had been untrue to her.

"Will you kneel down and hold my hand—just as if I were your husband—until I pass on?" he asked softly.

It was the woman, not the doctor who held the cold hand that once caressed her. The fluttering of hers expressed more than words. Her hot tears fell upon and washed them clean in a flood of love.

The [illegible] chamber and [illegible] softly out—she saw a woman praying for the passing of a soul, not a doctor.

Willy's mother was serving him hot cocoa. On seeing that the cocoa was hot, Willy said: "Ma, can I put in some cold water in my cocoa, it's too hot." Willy's mother replied: "No, the water destroys the taste of it, and it won't give you any benefit."

Willy replied: "Well, why didn't you put cold water in it before you boiled it." JOHN FILKINS, JR.

FOXY GRANDPA AND HIS INTERESTING DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

WE were down in Mexico, near Alamos, and I had on a big Mexican sombrero and Bobby had on one and Bunny had a little one perched on the top of his head with his ears sticking through. He said it was a great protection from the sun, but that his ears got most awfully hot, but that it wasn't comfortable with them poked under and, although he considered long ears ornamental, they were quite inconvenient at times.

Out in the garden of the hacienda—that means home or ranch-house in Spanish—where we were staying was a tree growing. It was on the edge of a marshy stretch and I thought it was a strange thing to build a house by a marsh.

Well, anyhow, that tree grew there and it had very pretty flowers on it.

"Wonder what the blossoms turn into when Summer comes," said Bobby one day, because my Bobby is quite a botanist.

"We'll be down here in August," I said, "so we'll be able to see just what those blossoms do turn into."

"You'll be surprised," said Bunny, taking off his sombrero and rubbing his ears.

"Why?" asked Bobby.

"Oh, you'll be surprised," was all that Bunny would say.

And we were surprised when August came because there on the tree were little pods—singular pods. But that wasn't as surprising as what happened later, when the pods fell on the ground.

The hot winds blew across our garden and we heard the pods rattling on the tree before they fell off, and often Bobby would look up into the tree and say:

"I wonder when they will start to fall."

One day they did. We were walking through the garden and came to our tree, and right then and there a pod fell at our feet, and what do you think it did? It commenced jumping around!

"What is it?" asked Bobby, hesitating to pick up the pod.

"Mexican jumping bean," announced Bunny, shaking his head and looking very wise.

"But what makes it jump?" asked Bobby. "Electricity?"

"Nothing as mechanical as that," declared my little rabbit.

"Then what is it?" asked the boy, getting up his courage and picking up the bean in his little hand.

"Open it and see," said I.

Bobby opened the pod and there found three chambers. First he looked into one and then into another. In each of these chambers were tiny black seeds. Then he opened the third and there, wriggling around, was a tiny worm.

"Here it is," he shouted. "But how did it get in there?"

"An insect laid it there when it was a flower," said Bunny, "so when the egg hatched out it had a nice, cozy home."

"All I have to say," said Bobby, "is that it must have some pep to be able to jump around with its house on its back."

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a pilous look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent. of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

BIG SUGAR MEN IN 'WATCHFUL WAITING'

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Big sugar men just now are engaged in "watchful waiting." Sugar remains about the lowest-priced of any commodity. Few look for higher prices in the near future, though sugar costs to the consumer must rise before most companies can show satisfactory profits.

• • •

Charles Hayden, chairman of the executive committee of Cuban Cane Sugar Corporation, just back from inspecting the growing crop, adds emphasis to our idea of "watchful waiting," saying: "Cuba Cane has been passing through steady solidification and concentration of its properties and, having completed its construction, has nothing to do at present except reap the benefits which will be large the first year there is a good price for sugar."

Charles Hayden

Why was it called the Boston & Maine instead of Massachusetts & Maine? This question was presently raised by Gen. Andrews of the auditor's office. F. B. Rowell, research engineer, was informed of the question and gives the following interesting bit of history:

"The earliest predecessor of the Boston & Maine Railroad was the Andover & Wilmington Railroad Corporation, chartered in 1833 and opened in 1836. In 1837, when the extension from Andover to Haverhill was started, the name was changed to Andover & Haverhill Railroad Corporation.

"In 1839 the name was again changed to the Boston & Portland Railroad Corporation and the latter corporation was authorized to extend to the Massachusetts-New Hampshire line. A railroad called the Boston & Maine Railroad was incorporated in New Hampshire in 1835 and authorized to build a line from the Massachusetts-New Hampshire line at Haverhill to the line of Maine at the Salmon Falls River.

"In 1841 the Boston & Portland Railroad Corporation and the New Hampshire corporation called the Boston & Maine Railroad were united under the name, Boston & Maine Railroad, and the name has remained unchanged to the present time.

"We will probably never know why the present name was adopted instead of Massachusetts & Maine Railroad, but Boston was then as now the metropolis of New England, and it was quite natural to use its name in the title of any railroad having its terminus in that city. Out of eight of the early railroads running from Boston in the early 60's, five followed this rule, to wit: Boston & Maine, Boston & Lowell, Boston & Providence, Boston & Worcester (later Boston & Albany), and Boston, Hartford and Erie (later New York & New England)."

Money conditions are finally beginning to reflect the liquidation in the stock markets and the indifferent Spring credit demands of trade. Call money at New York is down to 4 per cent.—collateral loans are easier at 4¾ per cent.—and commercial money, while unchanged, is easy at 4¼ per cent., as it has been all year.

Such prompt reflection of the events of the past week or two supply evidence that whatever liquidating pressure may be necessary to correct unhealthy conditions and to effect a return to normal will be quite gradual so far as money is concerned. The reservoir of credit is enormous and has been tapped only by the world of finance—hardly at all by trade.

Meantime the pendulum of business has not yet begun to swing downward so far as not to be strengthened. The stock trade is steadily increasing its activities until the Steel Corporation is working around 85 per cent. capacity. The automobile industry is producing at an enormous rate. The oil industry, the railroads—all are prospering.

• • •

The only question is as to the ability of manufacturing to sustain such activity beyond the Spring months. The second successive reduction in forward orders of the Steel Corporation goes to show that incoming orders are not sufficient to absorb the current high production. It will be interesting to see if a tapering-off of manufacturing activity is reflected in the prices of commodities, which on the average have been tending decidedly downward all year.

Wall Street Gossip

CALL MONEY renewed at 4¼ per cent.

HIGH PRICED SHARES were prominent in the early rise, many of them responding to intimations of mergers and higher dividends.

CHICAGO Pneumatic Tool Company net of $6.88 a share on $10,408,000 capital compares with $6.11 on $10,313,400 stock in 1924.

IN WESTERN OIL shares improvement was based on advances in the price of crude, on reports as well as reports of new combinations affecting Pacific Coast companies.

GAINS in more than a score of issues ranged from 1 to 2½ points.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

One difference between the successful man and the unsuccessful man usually is this: The successful man has courage, the unsuccessful man hasn't.

The test of a man or a business comes, not when things are moving along smoothly, but when storms break and rage.

Charles M. Schwab developed Bethlehem Steel from a small, broken-down concern to its present decond) place in the iron and steel industry by following the fixed policy of never allowing spells of depression throughout the country to stop his expansion plans and operations. He found that labor and materials could be obtained on more favorable terms during bad times than during booms.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Company never puts in its horns during temporary depressions, but presses steadily forward with the costly developments necessary to prepare it to cope with national progress and expansion when prosperity comes.

John D. Rockefeller confided to me that he owed his business success mostly to his faith in the future of the oil industry at times when others became panicky and refuse to sell out. Andrew Carnegie did exactly the same thing in the early turbulent days of the iron and steel industry, invariably go hand-in-hand.

If you haven't it, cultivate courage. If you have it, never lose it.

cludes boiled vegetables is so important. The best part of vegetables is boiled out in many households and thrown away. In soup it is preserved. Eat good soup once a day.

JEREMIAH SHEEHAN drank bootleg whiskey; then, it is said, threw his three-year-old daughter onto a red-hot stove. The child, in the hospital, will probably recover. The father is in jail, and Magistrate Dale, who sent him, said: "Were there brewers on every block today, this would not have happened."

That depends. If the brewers owned the saloons and sold whiskey to make too many saloons profitable, as in old days, it might have happened. But if that little girl's father had drunk beer instead of whiskey, it would not have happened to her.

RICHARD PADGETT, scientist, shows an instrument that talks. It says, "Hello, London, are you there?" and "Lila, I love you." Science lets us talk across the continent or, lying in bed, hear the President making his speech in Washington. Now appears a machine that may save us the trouble of talking.

MAN'S HARDEST work is done by pushing a button, which button starts the steam shovel or steamship.

Zangwill wrote long ago, "The Napoleon of the future will be an epileptic chess player, carried about the field of battle on an air cushion."

Let's hope that will never come, but inventors are doing what they can to bring it about.

GRADUALLY FLIERS will conquer the oceans. Airplanes will take passengers from Paris to Dakar in French Africa. Flying passengers will transfer there to surface ships for South America, and make the trip in one-half the usual time.

Before your baby goes to college, flying across the ocean will be as commonplace as traveling by automobile. Then what? Talking to other planets, perhaps.

IN DAYS GONE by radical youth demanded a change; conservative old age said, "Let be."

Now in France, Italy, Germany, youth turns, conservative, joins the Fascisti," or any anti-radical party. Young Frenchmen with blackjacks, brass knuckles and revolvers break up a meeting of Paris Communists, and break up several of the Communists—unexpected reinforcement for conservatism.

Harvard's New Leader

William J. Bingham, Director of Athletics, Worked His Way

The more unconditional Americans here and everywhere come to know of the life and achievements and traits of character of William J. Bingham, Harvard's new director of athletics, the prouder they will be to claim him as their kinsman in the household of the Nation.

The eldest of six children, Bingham was selling papers at 11 and working in a mill at 14. Five years later, he was earning $12 a week and placing $10 of it in the hands of his mother.

He wanted an education, so his days in the mill were followed by evenings in a night school.

He helped to pay his way at Phillips Exeter by taking care of lawns and furnaces. He peddled peanuts there, was not above anything that offered the opportunity to make an honest dollar.

Did any of these things injure the young man's standing with other clean young Americans, of the type that chooses Exeter or Andover? The answer is that in his senior year "Bill" Bingham was president of his class, captain of the track team, manager of the football team, president of the Christian Fraternity and leader of the Glee Club! All-round leadership, excellence in athletics and superlative excellence in studies brought him the Yale cup and a scholarship of $1,000.

In the New Hampshire academy town they remember that before the young man left for Harvard he called upon every one of his part-time employers to thank them for their help.

Harvard can rely upon "Bill" Bingham to do his level best; the rest of us, on the side lines, are confident that Bingham's best will soon attract and will long hold the attention of athletic America.

What Has City Done for You?

And More Important, What Is It Doing TO Your Children?

Life on the farm is not at all that it used to be, what with telephone, music-box, radio, electricity, the daily newspaper in the R. F. D. box at the gate, and so on, and it is not surprising that in the five-year period, 1920-'25, the farm population of our own Massachusetts should have shown a growth of 30,813.

The figures have just come to hand from the Census Bureau. In 1920, 118,554; last year, 149,367.

One in every five Massachusetts farms had a radio outfit.

Approximately one in every 15 farms had a tractor.

We produced more milk, 86,575,083 gallons in 1925, as compared with 76,316,309 gallons in 1920, and we SOLD more, 65,848,748 gallons as against 55,676,658 gallons.

The biggest growth appears to have been made in the poultry business, which still is a mighty long way from being overdone. In 1920 there were 1,455,193 chickens on Bay State farms and in 1925 the number had grown to 2,029,819.

There still is plenty of room on New England farms for families of boys and girls having a liking for the simple life with up-to-date trimmings. Isolation is a thing of the past. Given the modest amount of capital necessary to swing a small place without the worry that travels with debt, and many men of rugged physique, who barely manage to "get by" in the city, would find themselves in the way of growing comparatively rich in the country.

This is the right time of year to be thinking seriously of "five acres and liberty."

Poor Fish

Not to Be Had in Boston Today, More Especially If Your Choice Is Cod or Haddock

There has been more bustle and activity in the local fish market of late than at almost any previous time since the Fish Pier was opened, twelve years ago.

On Monday, beginning the week properly, the steamer Fabia, Captain Robert Wharton, brought in 240,000 pounds of fresh fish, practically all haddock. At $5 per hundredweight, and as much as a dollar more was commanded in some cases, the Fabia's fare was worth $12,000.

Not bad, for a four-days' trip to the South Channel, but by no means an everyday occurrence. Captain "Bob" is what is known down Gloucester way as a "consistent high liner" and this was the largest catch EVER brought from the South Channel grounds in a single vessel.

How seldom the average New Englander gives a thought to the importance of New England's fisheries. Consider the small herring, which gather in huge schools in Passamaquoddy Bay and which Maine sends out to the world in competition with the European sardine.

The first "sardine" plant at Eastport was built in 1874, turning out a few hundred cases. Today there are sardine factories all along the coast from Lamoine to Lubec. Their output last year was 1,800,000 cases and its value SEVEN MILLION DOLLARS!

Pick out a substantial haddock or a good looking cod today, take it home for supper and be thankful that Fate did not drop you down somewhere in the interior, where they get ALL their fish from cans.

Robbing Poor Lo

Used to It by This Time. It Is Not Uncle Sam's Fault

The next best thing to owning a conscience is to be ashamed of yourself. Distinguished United States Senators bid themselves to avoid a rollcall on the proposal to steal from Navajo Indians half the money to build a bridge for white men.

The white men want, for their automobiles, a bridge connecting Arizona and Utah across the Colorado River.

The poor Navajos do not want the bridge, and wouldn't use it, but they have a little money within reach of Uncle Sam's hands, and the schemers would use that to build the bridge. Senator Cameron, of Arizona, is to be congratulated for defending the Indians that cannot vote. Senator Ashurst doubtless has been, or will be, equally active in making the white men pay for their own bridge.

It is bad enough to steal the Indians' lands. They should be allowed to keep the dollars they have.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

OUR friend, W. R. Ramsey, has been worrying for some time over this business of Married Ladies Working, and he feels that he has at last found an argument which will be a K. O. on the whole proposition.

"Before our women entered the commercial world on a par with men," says he, "we had few divorces, but since their advent into business divorces have augmented in proportion to the number employed."

Is it true?

Sure. It's true.

But what of it?

Why conclude that such a condition demonstrates that there's something wrong with feminine jobs? Why not conclude that it demonstrates even more conclusively that there's something wrong with the old scheme of matrimony?

The fact that women began getting divorces as soon as they achieved jobs doesn't prove that jobs lured them from their homes. It simply proves that their lives in those homes were unsatisfactory and that they grasped the first opportunity to escape from such conditions.

A great deal of tawdry sentiment has been written about the Old Fashioned Home. There's nothing finer in the world than a real home, be it of old or new fashion. The Old Fashioned Home wasn't the Arcadia the romanticists would have us believe. It harbored an incalculable amount of meanness, injustice and stupidity.

Status Was Low

The place to find the actual standing of the Old Fashioned Home is not in the poetry books, but in the law books of a nation. The law books of this particular nation reveal that for much of the time the wife's status in the home was just about on a par with the bossy cow's. And not always as good. As for the children, Papa could dispose of them as so much pig iron, if he so willed. Which he frequently so willed.

Such power on Papa's part did not always give rise to actual cruelty. The normal human finds scant pleasure in beating, starving or abusing his kind. But he is extremely careless about the mental cruelty he inflicts unless restrained by the strong arm of the law. And the mental cruelty inflicted upon women prior to the advent of feminine jobs was appalling.

A woman's unborn child was rarely willed away from her by a fiendish father, although the law allowed fathers such rights in certain of our States. But her pride and self-respect were ruthlessly stripped from her, and all her personal dreams and ambitions crushed. She might labor at her lord's side for fifty years, but on the day of their Golden Anniversary she did not have the legal right to claim as her own any stick or stiver of Friend Husband's possessions. It was all his—as was the fruit of her body and the service of her hands.

Is it any wonder that women turned eagerly toward the right to earn and retain their own money? Is it any wonder that the daughters of such homes should have rebelled against the slavery which had held their mothers? Is it any wonder if they instantly resented any effort to hold them in that same slavery and sought relief in the divorce courts?

Divorce Rate Grave

Our wholesale divorce rate is tragic and appalling. But it is not caused by woman's present economic standing. Rather it is caused by her reaction against the hopelessly muddled condition of marriage, which, having failed to retain its ancient alignment with society, has, as yet, found no new alignment which insures happiness.

No man having used modern farming methods would go back to ploughing the land with a stick as did his ancestors. Yet we expect women, having experienced the benefits of economic freedom, to remain satisfied with an arrangement which was but poorly adapted to her great-grandmother's needs and is wholly out of keeping with her own modern viewpoint.

Would I eliminate marriage? Never. You can't eliminate marriage. In some form or other it's bound to persist. But it is high time that it took a new form. Let it take a form which guarantees the wife some tangible return for the time and strength invested, a form which will give her a definite, honorable, professional standing in the community.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

WINTER days are full of cheer, gay and happy times, under skies snow-filled or clear childhood's laughter chimes; snowflakes floating down to earth by the north wind whirled and a madcap mood of mirth capturing the world! Seems like we'd be satisfied in a world like this, just to let the glad days glide, nothing much amiss. Yet, although we love full well times of snow and fun, there will come a magic spell when these days are done. Tiny buds their way will make through the warming earth, and all sleeping things will wake at the Springtime's birth. Winter days are filled with cheer, yet our spirits sing at the thought, this time of year, it will soon be Spring!

OPPOSITION SHOWN TO CHRISTIANITY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE press dispatches report that there is being organized in China opposition to Christianity.

This means that the Chinese are banding together to oppose the innovation of Western ideas.

This opposition to Christianity arises from the organized nature of the Christian religion.

Any religion which is organized and propagandizes its doctrines is bound to be resisted. It will make some converts, but there will be others who will oppose it.

There is doubtless good in the organization of religious bodies and they serve a certain purpose. But we should remember that everything that is organized to accomplish an end creates opposition.

There is no opposition to Christianity as a life. No one, not even the veriest infidel or heathen, objects to a man's living according to the principles of Jesus. He can be as mild, as forgiving, as charitable and as loving as he pleases. No one will oppose him. But the moment Christianity becomes an association to advance His peculiar ideas it creates antagonism.

We can safely lay down the principle, therefore, that Christianity as a sect or band will be opposed, while Christianity as a life or a way of living will not be opposed.

The Chinese have no objection to our benevolence or helpfulness. They have no objection to our medical assistance, or educational assistance. But it is natural that the adherents of Buddhistic ideas should array themselves in an antagonism to a set of ideas which are opposed to them.

We might send any number of people to China who would simply lead a Christian life and not endeavor to spread the Christian doctrine, and the Chinese would not object. But the moment we attempt as an organization or a group of organizations to combat the Buddhistic or Brahmanistic religion we arouse a contrary effort.

Bacon somewhere says that there is excess in all things, but there is no excess in charity.

There has recently been a convention held of the Big Brother and Big Sister movements in the United States. In these Jews, Catholics and Protestants unite. The moment any one of these organizations should begin to preach its doctrine it would be opposed by the others. But in the matter of service there is no opposition.

Paul says that "the unity of the spirit is the bond of peace," and we may add as a corollary that the unity of opinion is a bond of contention.

HOW THE RADIO IS BRINGING BETTER UNDERSTANDING

One of the finest things about radio is the glimpses one gets into the lives of many persons in many parts of the country and the good will engendered.

You become attached to a speaking voice—it rings true.

You associate culture and refinement with another because you have had the privilege of listening many times to broadening thoughts presented by that one in a well-modulated, truly correct diction.

You look forward to the exquisite music of a certain organization.

You feel grateful to the one who is backing the delightful hours you enjoy listening to artists who have already raised your standards in art and music and literature.

You find beautiful thoughts and high ideals voiced by sects and organizations whose ideas you have never before understood.

You find so many things in common between you and members of an outside world that you could not come in contact with if it were not for radio.

You are spending more time at home and you are getting acquainted with the home folks and what they enjoy.

Daring but Useless

Nothing Worth While That Produces NO RESULTS

You see the man under the elephant. His "stunt" took nerve. But what of it?

FRANK BASELLO the man in this picture, "had his nerve with him" when this picture was taken. He trains and controls the huge monster that is holding its weight just above him.

Basello, to show how well his elephants obey, lay flat on the ground, and ordered the elephant slowly to kneel down and take the position that you see here.

"A brave man," you say. Yes, if bravery consists in doing that which is DANGEROUS and at the same time USELESS.

COURAGE is hard to define, much harder than to define the mere absence of nervousness.

What is courage, who has shown it? It was shown by Latimer, burned alive with his friend, Ridley.

When he and Ridley were sentenced to die together, he feared that his friend might be betrayed into some act of cowardice that would injure the cause to which they were devoted. As the flames began crackling about them, Latimer cried out:

"Be of good comfort, Master Ridley. Play the man! We shall this day light such a candle, by God's grace, in England as I trust shall never be put out."

That was MENTAL COURAGE.

Latimer will be remembered when this elephant will have been long forgotten.
